Madison and southern Wisconsin is rapidly digging itself out of the snow which tied up business and lines of communication yesterday. Although more snow fell last night and this morning, bringing the total snowfall since Sunday night to 14 inches, the snow is light and will present no difficulties.

The abatement of the high wind has removed most of the trouble resulting to overhead wires. The gale, which reached a velocity of 42 miles per hour at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, had decreased to 10 miles this morning.

Traffic between Madison and surrounding points is almost back to normal but street car service has not been fully restored. Trains on the three railroads entering Madison are again running on time and full schedules have been resumed, officials report. Telegraph lines are also operating favorably.

Local officials of the Wisconsin Telephone Co. report telephone service in the city as being again in normal condition, but many wires south and east of the city are down. Connections are established to all points, however, and linemen are out repairing damage.

The Madison Railways Co. is bending every effort to restore normal street car service. Cars managed to reach the capitol square late yesterday, and a schedule is being maintained frob the car barns to Charter st. on University ave., one line on State st. being opened, while the other is being cleared. The Winnebago-W. Main st. line has not been opened, nor has the South Madison line. Johnson st. cars are running from the square to N. Livingston st., but are experiencing great difficulty in negotiating the hill on N. Hamilton st.

Migratory Birds Can Survive 12 Hour Snowstorm

The vanguard of migratory birds in and about the city were fortunate when Monday's storm was broken after 12 hours' duration, according to Warren Taylor, instructor of English at the university.

"Thousands of migratory birds throughout the storm region would have died of exposure and starvation had the storm extended over another day," Mr. Taylor said. "Birds can survive a storm of 12 hours duration without a great handicap finding sufficient shelter and food for this length of time with a moderate temperature prevailing.

"Blue birds, robins, and redwinged blackbirds suffered considerably due to the storm but it is not thought that fatalities were great among them," Mr Taylor said." In the storm of 20 years ago many blue birds were killed."

Blaine Frees Man Who Shot Dog

Says Poets Are Not Practical Farmers

POETS and orators who have extolled praiseworthy characteristics of dogs, were not farmers, Governor Blaine asserted today in a statement explaining why on Saturday he granted an absolute pardon to B. H. Diny, serving 60 days in jail for killing a canine pet of some boys who had trespassed on his land in Oneida county.

"On this particular occasion, Diny found some boys with a dog and he asked them to take their dog and get out, whereupon they became very abusive," the governor said. "Feeling keenly the many impositions upon him, Diny, in a moment of passion, shot the dog.

"The farmer has sufficient with which to contend—wind, storms, drought, floods, stock market gamblers, and hunters' dogs. Much beautiful poetry has been written about the dog and reams of eloquence have been spoken about the faithfulness of the dog to his master.

"But these poets and orators did not have this dog in mind; neither did they ever own sheep and cows in which they took great pride and upon which they depended for their existence. For that reason an absolute pardon is granted."

"Fever Girl" Now Seriously Ill After Clever Hoax is Discovered

Evelyn Lyons Hysterical; Has Real Fever Of 104 Degrees

(By the Associated Press)

ESCANABA, Mich.— No longer known as the girl who lived despite the highest temperature reported in medical history, but instead as the young woman who perpetrated one of pathology's greatest hoaxes, Miss Evelyn Lyons was today reported actually in a serious condition. For 22 days the recipient of hundreds of messages from all parts of the country while her fever was reported officially by the attending physician as having ranged from 114 degrees upwards, Miss Lyons was said today to have found the excitement which accompanied her three weeks treatment and the subsequent exposure of her trick of touching the thermometer to a tiny hot water bottle too much for her. As a consequence she was reported hysterical with an actual temperature of 104, and a possibility that death might follow her protracted faking.

ESCANABA — Miss Lyons, who is a professional nurse, suffered from a mania to diagnose her own case as more serious than it was, Dr. Defnet declared Monday night.

"She was seriously suffering from peritonitis," Dr. Defnet said, "but her case by no means was as serious as she imagined.

"Her mania to diagnose her illness had worked to such an extent upon her mind that she actually became to be a very sick girl."

Miss Lyons related why she "fooled" the hundreds who came to the the notorious case.

"I have found out that the world is just full of thousands of tender hearted people who cannot bear suffering. I know I did wrong in fooling the doctors. My hoax first entered my head when Dr. Defnet turned his back to me, and I touched the bulk of the instrument to the hot water bag. When he saw this he was overcome with surprise and he took the reading again. I thought I would fool him. I thought it a good joke on him but never thought of keeping it up. Then came newspaper stories, the telegrams, hundreds of letters from so-called 'nature healers' from all parts of the nation."

Dr. H. J. Defnet, city physician has been treating the young woman for weeks for peritonitis. The score or more friends who during the height of the alleged fever prayed and worked for Miss Lyon's recovery were not about the home today.

Accepting the invitation of Dr. Defnet to come and see for themselves, and to help him solve the mystery, Doctors Morris Fishbein and R. D. Woodyat of Chicago examined the 27 year old former nurse, found her body fluids indicated no fever, although readings made in the usual manner indicated fever of 114 or more degrees.

Leaving the room after having placed a thermometer in Miss Lyons mouth the doctors watched, without the patient being aware of it. From the folds of the bed clothes, they said, she lifted a tiny, flesh colored water bottle, touched the bulb of the thermometer to it, and then replaced the glass tube in her mouth.

The great aid to Miss Lyons' temporary success was supplied by her credulous mother," as Miss Lyons said she needed the bottle to alleviate pains. If watched too closely it was Miss Lyons' habit to break the thermometer.

An unnatural desire for publicity is said to account for the young woman's idea.

Indian Here to Plead Cause

Equal rights for Indians similar to the privileges enjoyed b yother aliens is asked by Nipo Strongheart, who is conducting a personal tour of the United States and Canada in an effort to have conditions now existing in Indian reservations bettered.

Mr. Strongheart, a full blooded member of the Yakima nation of Puget Sound, was in the city today securing autographs o fcity and state officials before leaving for Merrimack where he will give a lecture on Indian life at the reservations under present conditions.

"No matter what human hands take away from the Indian no power on earth can take away their loyalty in America the spirit of which has been born in him for centuries," Strongheart said. "They are not given any privileges as citizens though during the war statistics show that about 18,000 served in the army."

Strongheart has covered about 67,000 miles in his car during the nine years that he has been touring the States and Canada. His tribe was unacquainted with the white man prior to 1855, he said.

Heavy Storm Repetition Of the Sleet and Snow Blizzards of 1921 and 1922

History has again repeated itself. The storm which caused one death in Madison, a tying up of street car service, railroads, and lines of communication is only a repetition of the early spring blizzards which yearly sweep up from the south resulting in tornadoes in southern states and blizzards in the north.

When you opened your Capital Times yesterday you were confronted with a headline which read, "1 Dead in Storm Gripping Madison," and another which read, "Gales, Tornado Kills Score."

The Capital Times of April 16, 1921, carried headlines reading, "Tornado and Storm Spread Death and Ruin;" "City and State in Grip of Blizzard;" "Arkansas Gale Takes Toll of 50 Lives."

And do you recall the sleet storm of last April which caused destruction to trees and wires throughout the central portion of the state, when railroad service was tied up for several days?

The headline of April 17, 1922, read, "8 Killed, 35 Hurt in Cyclones in Illinois, Kansas, Indiana."

Two days later the following headline appeared: "Lake Ships Perilled as Blizzard Grips State."

The storm of two years ago was reputed to be the worst the state had suffered in history, although it did not cause so serious a tieup of street car service as did the storm of Sunday.

Seven Are Executed By Irish

Free State Takes Drastic Measures Against Irregulars

By the Associated Press)

DUBLIN— The Irish Free State authorities took renewed drastic measures today in dealing with the Irregulars campaign against the government, executing seven men here and in Cork for possession of arms and participation in attacks. This resumption of executions followed closely the raids over the week-end upon the colonies of Republican sympathizers in England and Scotland in which more than 100 prisoners were taken. The prisoners were shipped here from England and confined in Mount Joy jail on charge of conspiracy to supply the irregulars with weapons and munitions and thus aid the anti-government cause.

The men executed today were:

In Dublin—Michael Creevy, Henry Keenan, James O'Rourke.

In Cork—William Healey, James Tarle, Patrick Hogan and John Cronve.

All the men were convicted of having possessed arms, in several cases the announcements of the executions specified the attacks in which the men had participated.

(By the Associated Press)

DUBLIN—Michael Creevy and Henry Kernan, republicans, were executed today. They were arrested after a raid on a bank at Olds Castle and were convicted of possessing arms as well as a large sum of money. Creevy was a leader of the Irregulars.

New Raids Are Feared.

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON—The belief that further Irish raids are impending in Great Britain persists the press, although it is generally reported that the persons considered most dangerous were gathered in last week. The Daily Express says that the Free State detectives have been working for months in co-operation with Scotland Yard. They became acquainted with most of the details of the gun-running and other schemes, attending most of the secret meetings of the plotters. The Morning Post, says that Countess Markievicz has taken a prominent part in these meetings.

Telephone Calls Deluge Times In Chicago Fire

Telephone calls from curious residents of Madison and outlying towns asking for the latest information on the huge fire which was rumored to be enveloping the whole "loop" in Chicago, deluged the offices of The Capital Times yesterday.

Starting with a few sporadic calls in the early morning, calls increased in number as the rumor of the great fire spread over the city.

The blaze in Chicago was really a small fire on two floors of the Times building, near the Morrison hotel, and was never beyond control of the Chicago fire force. An over-zealous radio fan is thought to have caused the exaggerated rumor in Madison.

Six Airedales Burned Alive In Barn Fire

20,000 Hatching Eggs Are Destroyed On Farm Early Today

Fire loss of $7,000 was caused by a blaze which razed the incubator building and general barn on the chicken farm of M. V. Nelson, five miles south of Madison, near the Bryant school, at 4 o'clock this morning.

An overheated chimney pipe or crossed wires in the incubator building, is thought to have caused the blaze.

More than 20,000 eggs which were hatching in the incubators were lost in the fire. Four pure-bred airedale pups and two grown airedale dogs were burned alive.

Huge chicken barns filled with more than 1,500 pure-blooded white leghorn chickens were imperiled by flames which were fanned by high winds sweeping across Lake Wingra. The farm house was saved by heroic efforts of neighbors and members of the Nelson family who formed a bucket brigade.

Neighbors who were enlisted in the early morning hours by telephone, answered the call for help and fought the flames as best they could. Drifted snow hindered effective work. Firemen at the Central fire station were unable to respond to the call because of the drifted condition of the road.

Sleigh Only Means Of Country Road Travel

Jury Here Will Decide Whether Man Is Dead

A Circuito court jury must decide whether or not a former Lancaster man is living or dead.

Nine years ago the brother of Edward H. Hyde, Lancaster, dropped from sight. Friends and relatives knew him to be of ill health at the time. Nothing more was ever heard of him, and folks just took it for granted that he had died in some far away place.

Yesterday his brother, Edward H. Hyde, started suit against the Prudential Insurance Co., for insurance carried by his brother. The insurance firm declares it will pay only when it is proven that death is a surety.

Execute Hostages, Warning

French Make Threat In Case Of Further German Uprisings

(By the Associated Press)

ESSEN — The German population of the Recklenhausen district has been warned by Gen. Laignelot, commanding the district, it was announced today, that in the event any further French troops are assassinated or ambushed, the burgomaster of Buer, who is held as a hostage, together with four other town officials, will be shot at once as a measure of retaliation.

The civil mission of engineers headed by M. Coste, French inspector general of mines, which came into the Ruhr to exact coal reparations from the Industrialists has begun realization of its plans. May Use "Iron Hand" Policy

(By the Associated Press)

PARIS— It is understood that a proposal to strip the "velvet glove" from the Ruhr occupation, augmenting the number of effectives there, is soon to be considered by the cabinet in consequence of increasing disturbances in the occupied region. These manifestations are generally attributed to the nationalist associations.

Minister of War Maginot, who recently visited the Ruhr, will be able to furnish the government with full information as to the situation. It is pointed out that in the event an "Iron Hand" policy is decided on it will be applied with strict moderation.

The Brussels conference between Premiers Poincare and Theunis is believed to have chystallized the position of the Ruhr allies both as to questions of administrative procedure and possible negotiations with Germany. France and Belgium have served notice that they will evacuate the occupied territory only as the Germans actually perform their reparations obligations. The allies do not intend to accept German promises; they demand action.

Olbrich Draws Gov. Blaine's Tax Measure

Plan New Distribution Of Receipts From Income; Offset Undisturbed

In drafting his tax bill, Gov. Blaine is running against the same difficulties that confronted Senator H. J. Iverson with his income surtax measure and Speaker John I. Dahl, with his general income tax bill. The governor, however, is reported on good authority to be planning one or two innovations which he believes will give his proposal the support it needs to get through the legislature.

Although his tax plan is still in very tentative shape, Gov. Blaine is said now to be placing emphasis on the new distribution feature, probably to be included in the bill. This section of the proposal would provide that the state is to receive 50 per cent of the revenue, with the remaining 50 per cent to be distributed to cities and counties on the basis of population, according to one reliable report.

By using population as the scale for distributing the tax returns, the governor is said to figure that he can placate Milwaukee's objection to existing tax bills. Objections to the plan, however, may cause him to drop it before the the measure is finally reported out.

It is believed here that the new bill is being drafted in the executive office by Gov. Blaine and M. B. Olbrich, executive counsel on information furnished by the tax commission. All angles of the tax question are being investigated in an attempt to hit upon features of a measure that can be pushed through both houses.

There is practical assurance that the administration tax bill will not include repeal of the personal property offset. The rates will approximate those in the Dahl bill, it is said, with a lower rate on corporation earnings than the six per cent flat rate of the Dahl proposal.

The governor is confronted with the problem of raising $7,000,000 additional revenue for state purposes, because of repeal of the special mill taxes and the teachers' retirement fund income surtax. With the offset still in effect, that means that he will have to have rates in effect which can produce an additional $5,000,000 annually.

To provide this amount of revenue, it is essential that the state retain a large proportion of the total. With the reapportionment the larger cities, which pay most of the income tax, receive a smaller amount of the total when distribution is made on the basis of assessed valuation as to present.

This is said to have led the governor to the plan used in New York of returning the local shares of revenue on the basis of population.

THE SEVERSON PLANS

By cutting two per cent from the flat tax rate on corporations carried in his income surtax proposal before the legislature, Senator H. J. Severson said today that he would have business $2,000,000 annually.

This reduction is made possible by the increased returns from the tax on stock dividends, not previously taxed, and on the revenue derived from corporation incomes which are larger this year, due to a business revival.

As his bill, now stands, Senator Severson estimates that it would produce $2,000,000 from corporation earnings through the flat two per cent rate, $2,000,000 from stock dividends and $2,500,000 from the surtax on earnings of individuals over $4,000. This total of $6,500,000 of revenue would go to replace the present special mill taxes for state purposes and the surtax attached to the teachers' insurance and retirement fund.

Senator Severson announced that his bill will be pushed in the legislature and before the finance committee despite the announcement of Governor Blaine that he has a tax measure of his own Speaker Dahl, author of the general income tax bill now under consideration, takes the same position, with the result that three comprehensive revenue proposals will confront the legislature.

The rates of the Dahl bill are completely revised in order to meet the changed conditions that have resulted from increased earnings noted by the tax commission. A reduction in the six per cent corporation tax carried in the Dahl measure is anticipated. This will probably be cut to four per cent, lopping off $2,000,000 from this item.

Reduction in the tax on corporations should remove much of the objection of business men toward his bill. Senator Severson believes. He expresses the opinion that his bill offers the simplest and most effective way of raising the $6,500,000 made necessary by the proposed repeal of the special mill taxes for state purposes.

Ross Leaves For Son's First Concert In U. S.

Prof. E. A. Ross left Madison for New York last Saturday on a ten day trip to attend his son's debut in American music. Gilbert Ross, the son, recently returned to America after having made a six months concert tour in Germany. He will appear in America for the first time in Aeolian Hall, New York City, tonight.

The son of the great sociology professor, after studying for a period of years under Prof. Leopold Auer, violin master of New York and Chicago, left last summer to tour Germany, accompanied by his mother and brother Frank A. Ross. He played in Berlin, Hamburg, Leipsig, Munich and other large German cities.

Critics who have heard Ross are unanimous in their praise of his ability as a violinist. While in Germany, Frank Ross, a graduate of Harvard Law school, '21, studied law. Mrs. Ross and her two sons returned to America about two weeks ago.

EDGERTON— Frank Gress died here on Sunday, five hours before his brother-in-law, William Ford, passed away at Janesville.

Two Men Adrift in Boat For Week Live on Raw Potatoes

NEW YORK—The two Freeport, L. I., fishermen who disappeared a week ago last Sunday returned today with an epic of the sea. Caught in a snow storm that isolated their little motor boat 20 miles to sea from Freeport, their compass went wrong and they began a drift that ended Saturday night when a schooner from Nassau picked them up, 65 miles southeast of Ambrose.

Capt. Bergen Smith and Harry Matthews, are the two men who spent five days adrift.

Smith said he and Matthews went fishing. They started back at 10:30 a. m. when something went wrong with their compass and they found themselves heading out to sea. Soon they realized they were lost. Then they stopped their motor and let the boat drift. It drifted until Friday afternoon throughout a great blizzard.

The only provisions they had were some raw potatoes, a gallon of drinking water, and a pie. For three days before they were picked up they had no food nor water. Matthews drank sea water and became delirious. While in this condition he tried to persuade Smith to split a bottle of iodine in a suicide pact. At least one ship passed every day, Smith said, but always too far away to hail until the schooner passed Friday afternoon.

Fall Breaks Ankle

Miss Gena Thompson Suffers Broken Bone Monday; Slips On Snow

Gena Thompson, 1019 Lakeland avenue, former executive secretary of the Wisconsin Women's Progressive association, now a student in the university law school, was taken to the university infirmary at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon suffering from a broken ankle, the result of a fall on slippery walks on State street.

Miss Thompson was walking from the university library toward the city when the accident occurred. The police ambulance took her to the student hospital. Her condition is reported as improved today.

Trees Badly Damaged By Big Snow Storm

Hundreds of trees throughout the entire city have been damaged as a result of the storm Sunday night and Monday morning, according to Peter H. Walsh, street superintendent. Many trees have been broken down entirely while on some the damage merely extends to branches and limbs, resulting in the symmetry of the tree being marred.

A team and crew of workmen were detailed to the work of cleaning the streets of this debris this morning and more put on this work this afternoon by Mr. Walsh.

Sheriff's Posse Battles Dancers Charged With Having Liquor

PORTAGE, Wis. — Three men are in the county jail here charged with assaulting officers, while a fourth is charged with illegal possession of liquor, as the result of a gun battle between Sheriff Harry Nehls of Columbia county and his deputies, Earl Peterson and Fred Auerbach, and a crowd of merrymakers. Sunday night and early on Monday the latter attended a country barn dance on the Baggot farm, owned by H. Klinko, a few miles east of Kilbourn.

The arrested men, all of whom are farmers residing in the vicinity of Newport, Wis., are:

Platon Waite, 24, assault; Samuel Montgomery, 60, liquor possession. James Gahan, 24, assault. Joseph Gahan, 21, assault.

Sheriff Nehls late Monday night prepared to swear in twenty additional deputies, with whom he intends to scour the county Tuesday in an effort to round up several other residents, who, he says, took part in the assault which caused severe injury to all of the officers.

The sheriff and his deputies, following the receipt of reports of alleged moonshine making on the Baggot farm, arrived there while some forty young people were dancing.

The sheriff and his men lined them up against the wall and started searching. Suddenly, while Deputy Sheriff Peterson was searching Waite, the latter, Peterson alleges, pulled a bottle of liquor from his pocket and hit the deputy sheriff over the head with it, knocking him down.

At the same time some one in the crowd, the officer says, grabbed a chair and smashed the lights. Under cover of darkness most of the members of the dancing party fled into nearby woods, pursued by the sheriffs. A running battle followed during which some fifty shots were fired.

A hand to hand encounter followed, during which Sheriff Nehls and his deputies were kicked and badly beaten.

Finally, the sheriffs were able to arrest the two Gahans, Montgomery and Waite.

Formal charges were preferred at a hearing late Monday night before Justice of the Peace F. W. Kiefer who held the men under bonds of $1,000 in each case for trial in the District court.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

A young man who practiced medicine in Pennsylvania became famous and was called in consultation in many towns and cities because of his success in the treatment of disease. This was Dr. Pierce, who finally made up his mind to place some of his medicines before the public, and moving to Buffalo, N. Y., put up what he called his "Favorite Prescription," and placed it with the druggists in every state.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has long been recognized as a tonic for diseases peculiar to womankind. After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged-down by weaknesses of her sex—a woman is quickly restored to health by its use. Thousands of women testify that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has entirely eradicted their distressing ailments.

More recently that wonderful discovery of Dr. Pierce's, called An-uric (for kidneys and backache), has been successfully used by many thousands who write Dr. Pierce of the benefits received—that their backache, rheumatism, and other symptoms of uric acid deposits in joints or muscles have been completely conquered by its use.

Local Street Car Traffic Still Crippled

and yesterday and with the exception of some outlying sections, business was almost normal. In the state, however, with many telegraph and telephone wires down and with railroad service impeded much more trouble was encountered.

Oshkosh, Watertown and Burlington, reported some trains running last night. Janesville reported about half of the Monday trains running. Fort Atkinson, Jefferson and other cities on the Northwestern road were reported without rail service.

One of the most serious results of the storm was the damage to power lines. Fort Atkinson factories closed for the day because power lines were down and the city was in darkness. Burlington was in the same fix, except for the fact that high water in its streams made it possible for an old water wheel to supply current enough for lights.

More than 20 cities were without light and power as a result of the breaking of the transmission line from the Kilbourn dam. Among these were Columbus, Reeseville, Beaver Dam, Berlin, Juneau, Horicon, Jefferson and Johnson Creek.

The snow seemed to have been heaviest in eastern Wisconsin and along the lake shore.

Storm Death Toll Near 40

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO— Gradual restoration of telephone and telegraph facilities in the storm-swept area between the Rocky Mountains and the Appalachian range today brought additional details of death and destruction that followed in its wake, the dead nearing a total of 40, the injured counted at approximately 200 and damage to transportation lines of communication home and business building reported at millions of dollars.

The worst effects of the storm, a heavy downfall of snow or rain accompanied by a high wind that reached the proportions of a cyclone in some localities, was felt at Pinson, Tenn., and Deanburg, Tenn., where the death toll was 17 and the injured totalled between 50 and 75 persons.

Among the heroic acts related in connection with the details of the storm that of Henry Kline, a youth of Pinson, stood out. He walked and ran almost 12 miles to Jackson, Tenn., through darkness and blinding rain to give the first report of the disaster.

Stomach Upset?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.—Adv.

Ugly hairy growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small original package of delatone and mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then removed and the skin washed and every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm or inconvenience can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real delatone.—Adv.

Blaine Pardon For 2 Members National Guard

Governor Holds That Men Should Not Have Been Held Under Military Rule

Gov. Blaine took a stand against imprisonment of members of the Wisconsin National guard in peace time for infractions of military rules and regulations. He ordered annulled and set aside sentences of Harry E. Marshall, private in Battery 'D' 120th Field Artillery and Omer M. Masu, private, Battery 'E' 121st field artillery.

The governor pointed out that the state constitution of Wisconsin in its declaration of rights says that "The military shall be in strict subordination to the civil power," and emphasized that the jail sentences imposed on the two privates in the guard are uncalled for.

"The offense committed under the first charge is one that could have been duly prosecuted under civil power, and therefore, in peace time, as a matter of principle, such charge should not have been prosecuted under the Articles of War," the governor said. "In peace time I regard the constitutional guarantee superior to the military authority.

"In peace times imprisonment in institutions under civil authority should not obtain in enforcing military discipline. If an offense is such as to violate the articles of war and also civil authority, prosecution should be under civil authority, in peace times, in the Wisconsin National Guard and such military discipline should obtain under such circumstances as would not entail imprisonment, other than in the case in the exception noted."

How He Cured His Rupture

Old Sea Captain Cured His Own Rupture After Doctors Said "Operate or Death."

His Remedy and Book Sent Free.

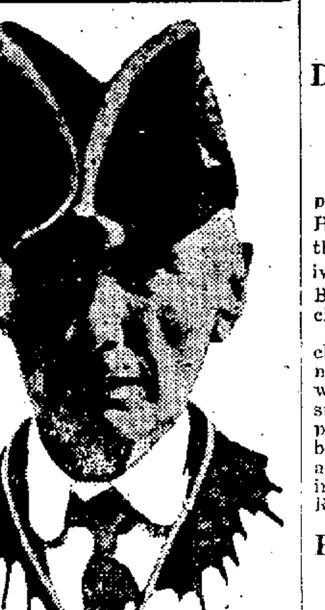

Captain Collings sailed the seas for many years; then he sustained a bad double rupture that soon forced him to not only remain ashore, but kept him bedridden for years. He tried doctor after doctor and truss after truss. No results! Finally, he was assured that he must either submit to a dangerous and abhorrent operation or die. He did neither! He cured himself instead.

Captain Collings made a study of himself, of his condition—and at last he was rewarded by the finding of the method that so quickly made him a well, strong, vigorous and happy man.

Anyone can use the same method; it's simple, easy, safe and inexpensive. Every ruptured person in the world should have the Captain Collings book, telling all about how he cured himself, and how anyone may follow the same treatment in their own home without any trouble. Tobacco Pool Claims Buyer Has No Case

Demurrer Filed Today Says Ground For Action Are Insufficient

A demurrer to the cross complaint and counter claim of the M. H. Bekkedal & Sons, in the suit of the Northern Wisconsin Co-operative Tobacco pool suit against the Bekkedal tobacco firm, was filed in circuit court today.

The pool attacks the counter claim on the grounds that it does not state facts of sufficient value to warrant a cause for action. The suit of the pool against the independent buying firm is scheduled to be continued March 26. Bekkedal and his agents are still under the injunction handed down by Judge E. Ray Stevens early in February.

The Community Union

By AUBREY WILLIAMS

Some one has said that the most enduring work in securing right human relations is that which unites people. The Community Union is basically a "Uniter". It provides a common platform upon which every one may stand regardless of Creed, color, race, or nationality. And this is a tremendous move forward in Social Service work. For this work which is at bottom altruistic, and designed to help people, has not always been a uniting factor in the lives of the people.

The Community Union by bringing all elements together creates contacts between diverse element and provides a uniting place where all may come, counsel, and work.

It is the only truly human and democratic platform—with sympathy as wide as our common humanity and as perenial as man's sense of responsibility to his fellows. Social solidarity, community of interest, common aims mutually understood are vital necessities in happy progressive community life. The Community Union is an organized effort to achieve, slowly but continuously and it is to be hoped surely, the joining together of the whole people in mutual respect and collective effort.

Find Material For Cement In Wisconsin

Investigation For Badger Plant Warranted, Says Geologist

Materials needed in the manufacture of cement are present in Wisconsin in such quantities to warrant an investigation by the state to establish the possibilities of a state owned cement plant, W. O. Hotchkiss, state geologist, says.

Acting on this investigation, the state affairs committee of the assembly with the sanction of Governor Blaine, is introducing a bill providing an appropriation of $18,000 to investigate the source of materials for cement manufacture and the perfection of plans for the state plant, if found practicable.

According to Prof. Hotchkiss, limestone deposits are abundant in Wisconsin. Limestone, together with clay is needed in the manufacture of cement. It will be the purpose of the survey to locate deposits of marl in sufficient quantities near large deposits of lime, before it will be practical to construct a plant.

A. R. Hirst, state chief highway engineer, says that it will cost the state approximately $8,000,000 to construct a million barrel cement plant, should the suggested survey show it to be practical.

Compromise On Personal Property Tax

Assemblyman Duncan In 3 Year Abolishment Of The Offset

A compromise bill intended to remove objection of some senators to repeal of the personal property offset to the state income tax is to be offered by the Socialist members of the legislature, Thomas Duncan, their spokesman, said today.

When his bill providing for repeal of the offset, is reported Assemblyman Duncan said that an amendment would be offered in the senate providing that taxpayers would be permitted to offset 75 per cent of their income the first year and 25 per cent the third year, followed in the fourth by complete repeal of the offset.

"This plan should meet the objection of those senators whose attitude is now making impossible complete repeal of the offset," the Socialist assemblyman said. "It will mean a gradual repeal and will give an opportunity for a referendum on the question at the next general election. Such a plan could not consistently be opposed by Progressive senators who now base their objection on the ground that the people are not behind the offset repeal."

With the present temper of the senate, it would be impossible to pass a tax measure that carried with it the removal of the offset to the income tax. Because of this fact, the socialists intend forforce the issue with their compromise.

Student Relates What Went On At The Gym

THE ZERO HOUR

An experience in getting tickets for the Wisconsin-Indiana basketball game. A true tale.

By JAMES E. OSTRUM '24

The music tower clock striking the hour of 10 this morning seemed to say to me:

"Hie thee to the gym. The lines are forming for their battle to obtain the privilege of letting some stranger's knees try the art of therapeutics up and down your spine while Wisconsin battles Indiana. Hurry or those few square inches of space that you desire will be allotted to some one else."

I promptly heeded the call and although several hundred yards separated me from the gymnasium I covered the distance in nothing flat.

MILITARY DRILL BY JAZZ

Four students, who had persuaded the janitor to let them into the building before the milkmen had finished with their early morning rounds, were the first ones I noticed when entering the armory. They were playing poker in close proximity to the ticket window. Others who had turned over for a few more winks of sleep were lined up on the stairs, some playing cards, many of them trying to get acquainted with English history by studying Cheney, and still others were reading of the happenings of the last 24 hours by reading the morning papers.

Several hundred students encircled the arena on the second floor. Here again were students playing cards, endeavoring to study, or trying to catch up with belated correspondence. One youth had brought along a victrola and was sending out over the multitude the wildest jazz while the freshmen military classes were going through with "Squads right."

"Where is the end of the line?" my partner asked a husky looking chap.

The drill prevented the formation of a single line and many students were gathered in little groups around the room without much semblance of order.

SKYROCKETS GIVEN

At 11:45 papers and books were put away, cards were discarded, dollar bills were pulled out of the vest pocket and each person arose to his feet ready to surge forward when the time came. Classes had dismissed and some order was being established but horrors, there were two lines forming four abreast. I got as close to the wall as possible and soon was hemmed in on all sides.

When the bells rang announcing 12 o'clock skyrockets were sent up in rapid succession for Jones, Ryan, tickets, athletic department, food, etc. The difficulty of having two lines now became apparent. The students were all pushing toward the door and the two lines came together at an angle. Remarks were passed back and forth between the two groups.

"Get to the end of the line there."

"Where do you get that stuff? This line formed first. We got here first."

"Pull in your neck. Your collar's smoking."

"Take a swim in a cup of water you tea hound."

When the attendants closed the one door barring those in the other line, great was their indignation and our joy. Mass formation and every body push was the cry of the minute. A few girls were in our line, but for the most part only huskies could be seen.

"Let's win by strategy," said a little fellow at the rear. "Let's all push straight ahead and take them unawares. When they react and start pushing we will turn in toward the door and will be in front of them."

The plan worked great. What a wonderful place it was for the sociology department to gather first hand data on "The Mob Mind."

"There must be a couple of fellows in my pockets," said one big fellow at my right. My overcoat is getting mighty heavy.

Bobbed Hair Tickles Nose

"I know what it feels like to be a sardine," was the reply of the girl in front of men who didn't know whom to blame for the daylight squeezing she was getting.

She was a pretty miss with bobbed hair and everytime she moved her head her hair tickled the nose of the man with the big pockets.

"Say scratch my nose, will you? I can't get my hands up."

When I took my place in the line I raised my hands above my head praying that I might get out that door in time to get a couple of the coveted pasteboards. Before my prayer was ended, I was so closely wedged in that I couldn't get them down again. I kept the blood in one arm circulating by scratching my neighbor's nose at frequent intervals.

My Feet Used for Another's Foundation

"When I came in here I had two arms I am sure," remarked a sweating junior with whom I had played cards a few ags long minutes ago.

"They must have checked out some place from elbows down as I can feel nothing of them."

At that he had nothing on me as for ten minutes past some other person had been using my feet for his Gilbralter. In return I rested my body on the empty stomach of the person in my rear and could feel the tattoo given his backbone by the knee of the one behind.

With a yell our line moved forward and with a half twist to my right. I shot out the door like sausage out of a balogna machine and I was on my way down the stairs. How good it felt to breathe with my own organs again. Fresh air never felt better. As I grabbed two tickets that were handed to me in return for a much ruffled eagle, I noticed that our friend of the bobbed hair had survived and was coming down the stairs. How she did seem to swell up when she took her first good breath for several minutes.

"I wouldn't go through a line like that again for 500 tickets," were our mutual thoughts as she powdered her nose and I pulled the broken button off my coat and hitched my belt around so that the buckle would again be in front.

But I got tickets and saw that Indiana game.

$12,000,000 To Be Asked By University

Appropriations Bill Will Be Before Finance Body This Week

The University of Wisconsin budget requests for the coming biennium will be heard by the joint finance committee of the legislature on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Appropriations totalling $12,000,000 are being asked for the coming two year period.

Pres. E. A. Birge will outline the general financial needs of the university, with each dean giving the special requests of the separate colleges. All activities of the institution will be thoroughly investigated by the committee.

The same appropriation for operating expenses and for maintenance as was granted two years ago, will be requested by the university. This amounts to approximately $10,000,000 for the biennium.

A $2,000,000 building program is included in the request for funds. It is believed that this item will be trimmed very radically by the committee, which is expected to select only the most urgent of capital expenditures.

Girl Sues Lumber King

Miss Olga Ralph.

CHICAGO — To the sordid world at large the story told in the filing of her suit by Miss Olga Ralph against John Henry Kirby, millionaire Texas lumberman, is just another one of those "spicy tales."

But to friends of Miss Kirby it comes as a blow. It blasts to bits the story of high ambition and of womanly demureness they loved to tell of her.

Until a few days ago her dearest friends were unaware that for a career, for love of music and luxuries and contentment that go to make one's life a song she had sacrificed all that was sacred to her.

Now they have read about her suit. In demanding $5,000 from Kirby she tells frankly that she and the mililonaire, sixty-three years of age, entered into an agreement a few years ago whereby Kirby was to pay her $6,000 in cold cash and $500 a month for life on condition that she become his secretary and companion—his daughter to all intents—on his journeys about the world. She recites how she had her name legally changed from Olga Ralph to Olga Kirby to carry out the terms of the agreement.

She tells how he paid—and she took the $6,000 sum. His refusal to pay the monthly "salary" of $500 caused her to file suit for the sum due her, she asserts.

Kirby denies the charges. The case will be fought of course.

Gilbert Ross Makes Debut In America

Youthful Violinist of Madison Appears Tonight In New York

In the Town Hall at New York city tonight at 8:30 Gilbert Ross, son of Prof. and Mrs. E. A. Ross, 2003 Chamberlain ave., will make his initial bow before an American audience as an artist of the violin.

Hardly more than a child, young Gilbert has just returned from a successful concert tour through Germany. Critics and audiences on the continent have proclaimed him a world figure in the new sphere of music which is emerging with the post-bellum period on the Western continent.

The extravagant praise which he has received in Germany will stand or fall following the verdict rendered tonight by the New York audience. Always most severe in its criticism of American players and musicians, the critics of the American metropolis will send over the wires tomorrow their estimate of the Madison lad.

Under the concert management of Arthur Judson, Gilbert will present tonight a program that is representative of the best musical composition of Italy, Russia, France, Germany, Austria, and America. Like Kreisler, the only American composition which he will play will be arrangement of a negro melody, a type of music whose warmth of melody and tone are best fitted to the violin.

Each of the other selections which he will present will require of him a display of technique, brilliancy or dramatic interpretation. The program in its entirety includes:

I Sonata in G minor ("Devil's Trill") Tartini; II Concerto in D major, Tchaikovsky; III Nocturne in E minor, Chopin-Auer; Tambourin Chinois, Kreisler; Deep River, Coleridge-Taylor-Maud Powell; Witches' Sabbath, Rubin Goldmark; IV Vogel als Prophet, Schumann-Auer; Introduction and Tarantelle, Sarasate, with Sandor Vas at the Piano.

Last Saturday Professor Ross left the city to attend the concert tonight. He will return almost immediately, but Mrs. Ross will remain with her son, who will continue his instruction under Leopold Auer.

In the early spring Mrs. Ross will return to Madison with her two sons, Gilbert and Frank, who has been studying law in Germany during the trip abroad, after receiving his degree from the Harvard Law school.

Daily School News Notes

Peg Walker (Editor)

SANDRO Botticelli, properly Alessandro Filipepi, was one of the most representative Florentine painters of the early Renaissance. He lived in a naturalist period, the 15th century, but was essentially a visionary artist. His works were a reflex of his time. They were also pronounced and individual since he clothed all he saw with the color of his own moods and ideas. His range of subjects extended from the great scriptural compositions through scenes in the life of the Virgin, classic history, Medici's court, Christian traditions, and classic myths. Nowhere does he give greater proof of his personal feeling and creating energy than in depicting Mary and her Child.

Find Material For Cement In Wisconsin

Investigation For Badger Plant Warranted, Says Geologist

Materials needed in the manufacture of cement are present in Wisconsin in such quantities to warrant an investigation by the state to establish the possibilities of a state owned cement plant, W. O. Hotchkiss, state geologist, says.

Acting on this investigation, the state affairs committee of the assembly with the sanction of Governor Blaine, is introducing a bill providing an appropriation of $18,000 to investigate the source of materials for cement manufacture and the perfection of plans for the state plant, if found practicable.

According to Prof. Hotchkiss, limestone deposits are abundant in Wisconsin. Limestone, together with clay is needed in the manufacture of cement. It will be the purpose of the survey to locate deposits of marl in sufficient quantities near large deposits of lime, before it will be practical to construct a plant.

A. R. Hirst, state chief highway engineer, says that it will cost the state approximately $3,000,000 to construct a million barrel cement plant, should the suggested survey show it to be practical.

Upwards of $111,000,000 was disbursed to policyholders and beneficiaries during the year in death claims, matured endowments, dividends, annuities and other payments, making a total return of $1,569,676,000 to policyholders since organization. Nearly $35,000,000 has been set aside for dividends to policyholders in 1923. Over 98 per cent of the domestic death claims were paid within 24 hours after receipt of due proofs of death.

Compromise On Personal Property Tax

Assemblyman Duncan In 3 Year Abolishment Of The Offset

A compromise bill intended to remove objection of some senators to repeal of the personal property offset to the state income tax is to be offered by the Socialist members of the legislature, Thomas Duncan, their spokesman, said today.

When his bill providing for repeal of the offset, is reported Assemblyman Duncan said that an amendment would be offered in the senate providing that taxpayers would be permitted to offset 75 per cent of their income the first year and 25 per cent the third year, followed in the fourth by complete repeal of the offset.

"This plan should meet the objection of those senators whose attitude is now making impossible complete repeal of the offset," the Socialist assemblyman said. "It will mean a gradual repeal and will give an opportunity for a referendum on the question at the next general election. Such a plan could not consistently be opposed by Progressive senators who now base their objection on the ground that the people are not behind the offset repeal."

With the present temper of the senate, it would be impossible to pass a tax measure that carried with it the removal of the offset to the income tax. Because of this fact, the socialists intend forforce the issue with their compromise.

Student Relates What Went On At The Gym

THE ZERO HOUR

An experience in getting tickets for the Wisconsin-Indiana basketball game. A true tale.

By JAMES E. OSTRUM '24

The music tower clock striking the hour of 10 this morning seemed to say to me:

"Hie thee to the gym. The lines are forming for their battle to obtain the privilege of letting some stranger's knees try the art of therapeutics up and down your spine while Wisconsin battles Indiana. Hurry or those few square inches of space that you desire will be allotted to some one else."

I promptly heeded the call and although several hundred yards separated me from the gymnasium I covered the distance in nothing flat.

MILITARY DRILL BY JAZZ

Four students, who had persuaded the janitor to let them into the building before the milkmen had finished with their early morning rounds, were the first ones I noticed when entering the armory. They were playing poker in close proximity to the ticket window. Others who had turned over for a few more winks of sleep were lined up on the stairs, some playing cards, many of them trying to get acquainted with English history by studying Cheney, and still others were reading of the happenings of the last 24 hours by reading the morning papers.

Several hundred students encircled the arena on the second floor. Here again were students playing cards, endeavoring to study, or trying to catch up with belated correspondence. One youth had brought along a victrola and was sending out over the multitude the wildest jazz while the freshmen military classes were going through with "Squads right."

"Where is the end of the line?" my partner asked a husky looking chap.

The drill prevented the formation of a single line and many students were gathered in little groups around the room without much semblance of order.

SKYROCKETS GIVEN

At 11:45 papers and books were put away, cards were discarded, dollar bills were pulled out of the vest pocket and each person arose to his feet ready to surge forward when the time came. Classes had dismissed and some order was being established but horrors, there were two lines forming four abreast. I got as close to the wall as possible and soon was hemmed in on all sides.

When the bells rang announcing 12 o'clock skyrockets were sent up in rapid succession for Jones, Ryan, tickets, athletic department, food, etc. The difficulty of having two lines now became apparent. The students were all pushing toward the door and the two lines came together at an angle. Remarks were passed back and forth between the two groups.

"Get to the end of the line there."

"Where do you get that stuff? This line formed first. We got here first."

"Pull in your neck. Your collar's smoking."

"Take a swim in a cup of water you tea hound."

When the attendants closed the one door barring those in the other line, great was their indignation and our joy. Mass formation and every body push was the cry of the minute. A few girls were in our line, but for the most part only huskies could be seen.

"Let's win by strategy," said a little fellow at the rear. "Let's all push straight ahead and take them unawares. When they react and start pushing we will turn in toward the door and will be in front of them."

The plan worked great. What a wonderful place it was for the sociology department to gather first hand data on "The Mob Mind."

"There must be a couple of fellows in my pockets," said one big fellow at my right. My overcoat is getting mighty heavy.

Bobbed Hair Tickles Nose

"I know what it feels like to be a sardine," was the reply of the girl in front of men who didn't know whom to blame for the daylight squeezing she was getting.

She was a pretty miss with bobbed hair and everytime she moved her head her hair tickled the nose of the man with the big pockets.

"Say scratch my nose, will you? I can't get my hands up."

When I took my place in the line I raised my hands above my head praying that I might get out that door in time to get a couple of the coveted pasteboards. Before my prayer was ended, I was so closely wedged in that I couldn't get them down again. I kept the blood in one arm circulating by scratching my neighbor's nose at frequent intervals.

My Feet Used for Another's Foundation

"When I came in here I had two arms I am sure," remarked a sweating junior with whom I had played cards a few age long minutes ago.

"They must have checked out some place from elbows down as I can feel nothing of them."

At that he had nothing on me as for ten minutes past some other person had been using my feet for his Gilbraiter. In return I rested my body on the empty stomach of the person in my rear and could feel the tattoo given his backbone by the knee of the one behind.

With a yell our line moved forward and with a half twist to my right. I shot out the door like sausage out of a balogna machine and I was on my way down the stairs. How good it felt to breathe with my own organs again. Fresh air never felt better. As I grabbed two tickets that were handed to me in return for a much ruffled eagle. I noticed that our friend of the bobbed hair had survived and was coming down the stairs. How she did seem to swell up when she took her first good breath for several minutes.

"I wouldn't go through a line like that again for 500 tickets," were our mutual thoughts as she powdered her nose and I pulled the broken button off my coat and hitched my belt around so that the buckle would again be in front.

But I got tickets and saw that Indiana game.

George C. Anspach, 2323 Keyes avenue, reports having seen two robins and a blue bird on Sunday near his home.

JANESVILLE — William Ford, noted local contractor, president of the Janesville Builders' exchange and a former vice president of the Wisconsin Master Builders association, died here Sunday night of cancer. He was 61 years old.

Purchase of the E. O. Fuller mortgage from the Merchants Trust & Savings bank, St. Paul, on a farm of 160 acres of land in Burnett county, Wisconsin, subject to a satisfactory re-purchase agreement, was approved by the board of regents of the university.

The recommendation for the purchase was made by Regent Ben Faast, Eau Claire, chairman of the trust funds committee.

It was also decided by the regents that the policy of that body shall be, as soon as plans can be perfected, to place farm loans from the university trust funds on the amortization plan.

$12,000,000 To Be Asked By University

Appropriations Bill Will Be Before Finance Body This Week

The University of Wisconsin budget requests for the coming biennium will be heard by the joint finance committee of the legislature on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Appropriations totalling $12,000,000 are being asked for the coming two year period.

Pres. E. A. Birge will outline the general financial needs of the university, with each dean giving the special requests of the separate colleges. All activities of the institution will be thoroughly investigated by the committee.

The same appropriation for operating expenses and for maintenance as was granted two years ago, will be requested by the university. It amounts to approximately $10,000,000 for the biennium.

A $2,000,000 building program is included in the request for funds. It is believed that this item will be trimmed very radically by the committee, which is expected to allow only the most urgent of capital expenditures.

Girl Sues Lumber King

Miss Olga Ralph.

CHICAGO — To the sordid world at large the story told in the filing of her suit by Miss Olga Ralph against John Henry Kirby, millionaire Texas lumberman, is just another one of those "spicy tales."

But to friends of Miss Kirby it comes as a blow. It blasts to bits the story of high ambition and of womanly demureness they loved to tell of her.

Until a few days ago her dearest friends were unaware that for a career, for love of music and luxuries and contentment that go to make one's life a song she had sacrificed all that was sacred to her.

Now they have read about her suit. In demanding $5,000 from Kirby she tells frankly that she and the millionaire, sixty-three years of age, entered into an agreement a few years ago whereby Kirby was to pay her $6,000 in cold cash and $500 a month for life on condition that she become his secretary and companion—his daughter to all intents—on his journeys about the world. She recites how she had her name legally changed from Olga Ralph to Olga Kirby to carry out the terms of the agreement.

She tells how he paid—and she took the $6,000 sum. His refusal to pay the monthly "salary" of $500 caused her to file suit for the sum due her, she asserts.

Kirby denies the charges. The case will be fought of course.

Gilbert Ross Makes Debut In America

Youthful Violinist of Madison Appears Tonight In New York

In the Town Hall at New York city tonight at 8:30 Gilbert Ross, son of Prof. and Mrs. E. A. Ross, 2003 Chamberlain ave., will make his initial bow before an American audience as an artist of the violin.

Hardly more than a child, young Gilbert has just returned from a successful concert tour through Germany. Critics and audiences on the continent have proclaimed him a world figure in the new sphere of music which is emerging with the post-bellum period on the Western continent.

The extravagant praise which he has received in Germany will stand or fall following the verdict rendered tonight by the New York audience. Always most severe in its criticism of American players and musicians, the critics of the American metropolis will send over the wires tomorrow their estimate of the Madison lad.

Under the concert management of Arthur Judson, Gilbert will present tonight a program that is representative of the best musical composition of Italy, Russia, France, Germany, Austria, and America. Like Kreisler, the only American composition which he will play will be arrangement of a negro melody, a type of music whose warmth of melody and tone are best fitted to the violin.

Each of the other selections which he will present will require of him a display of technique, brilliancy or dramatic interpretation. The program in its entirety includes:

I Sonata in G minor ("Devil's Trill") Tartini; II Concerto in D major, Tchaikovsky; III Nocturne in E minor, Chopin-Auer; Tambourin Chinois, Kreisler; Deep River, Coleridge-Taylor-Maud Powell; Witches' Sabbath, Rubin Goldmark; IV Vogel als Prophet, Schumann-Auer; Introduction and Tarantelle, Sarasate, with Sandor Vas at the Piano.

Last Saturday Professor Ross left the city to attend the concert tonight. He will return almost immediately, but Mrs. Ross will remain with her son, who will continue his instruction under Leopold Auer.

In the early spring Mrs. Ross will return to Madison with her two sons, Gilbert and Frank, who has been studying law in Germany during the trip abroad, after receiving his degree from the Harvard Law school.

MISS NEU IN ILLINOIS

Daily School News Notes

Peg Walker (Editor)

SANDRO Botticelli, properly Alessandro Filipepi, was one of the most representative Florentine painters of the early Renaissance. He lived in a naturalist period, the 15th century, but was essentially a visionary artist. His works were a reflex of his time. They were also pronounced and individual since he clothed all he saw with the color of his own moods and ideas. His range of subjects extended from the great scriptural compositions through scenes in the life of the Virgin, classic history, Medici's court, Christian traditions, and classic myths. Nowhere does he give greater proof of his personal feeling and creating energy than in depicting Mary and her Child.

Mrs. Thompson's Advice

CHAPERONE NEEDED FOR VISITORS

Says Girls Entertain Boy Friends At Home And Sometimes They Stay Until 1 O'Clock

DEAR MRS. THOMPSON: May I come to you for advice? Is it proper for girls who are renting apartments to have their boy friends come and stay in their apartments until one and two o'clock in the morning? What would be the proper way of letting them know what hour we would like to have them leave and what would be the proper hour to have them leave? Your advice will be appreciated.—E. A. E. A.

It is most improper to entertain men friends at all in apartments, except in groups in the afternoon or early evening, without the presence of a chaperone.

Most apartment houses have rules governing this, in the lease to unmarried people.

Every worth while young man would value your reputation enough to respect this conventionality.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a boy friend of whom I think quite a lot. A little while ago he left me to go with one of my dearest friends. He did not seem to change in his attitude toward me very much, but was just about as good a friend as ever. He always jokes and laughs and has a good time with me.

His birthday is coming and I should like to know if you think I should send him a card or do you think I would be running after him?

I am only thirteen and so it isn't anything serious, but we are just good friends.

WONDERING.

It would not be advisable for you to send a birthday card. Since the boy has left you to go with another girl he would perhaps think you were eager to have him back.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a boy eighteen years of age and I am engaged to a girl of the same age. I went with this girl for about a year and now I am sorry because I love another girl two years younger. I would like to break this engagement to go with this other girl. I know that the other girl loves me because she has told me that if I would break away from my fiancee she would marry me. If I could break my engagement we would get married, except that I am so young. What would you advise me to do?

BROWN EYES.

Probably the best thing you can do is to be frank and tell your afincee that you are in love with some one else. Your fiancee will not lose much because it is evident you do not take love seriously and you are too fickle to be faithful to one girl any length of time.

In case you break your engagement do not become engaged to the girl you think you love not until you have had time to test your love. An engagement is a serious matter and should not be treated in the light way you are doing.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young married woman and have been married five years. My husband makes good money, but I am not happy although I try to be.

I am nett in verson, prettyand a good housekeeper. I try to cook just the way my husband likes to have me. But he is naggy and fusses all the time. I can hardly stand him when he is that way. Sometimes he stays out late nights and doesn't have much to say for weeks. He isn't loving at all, but I believe he loves me as he buys me such lovely things. Of course I am babyish. Do you think that makes him fussy? I have tried to break myself of it, but I can't.

Can you think of any way to get him not to quarrel? Do you think he is nervous from his work? Please advise me how to overcome my problem.

BOBBED HAIR.

Probably you make the mistake of many wives; you depend on your husband and your home too much for your interests in life. Instead of being independent and active away from home as well as in the home, you bury yourself and have nothing with which to interest your husband except an account of your day at home. If you do not already belong to a club or church society, join one. There you will exchange thoughts with other women and will find new life.

Your babyishness must be a great handicap, but if you persist in your effort to overcome that failing, you can do so to a very large extent. Be a woman and not a child and your husband will make more of a companion of you.

Do not let your house work interfere with your reading. Take good magazines and get good books. This will also make you more interesting.

Novel Hats to Start Off New Season

By ELOISE

THE "first" spring hat must be something different or milady will pass it by. She wants a hat which will not have to be worn from early spring until the snow flies again, therefore it may be something unusual in color line or trimming for it is not long for this world. Here are three first hats for the present spring season. They are becoming and extremely graceful and they certainly have a marked style about them.

A smart turban of tan straw is shown at the left. It is covered with tan coque feathers which droop gracefully over the crown and fall to the shoulder. It is a particularly chic suit hat.

Gray straw makes the youthful drooping brimmed hat in the center. A huge bow of green and black velvet is the simple and dignified trimming. The shape is designed for afternoon wear and is a pretty style for wear with light frock and costume suits.

Most unusual of the three is the hat at the right. It is fashioned of gunmetal gray maline. It is a draped turban with a perky bow and long streamers at the side and is an ideal style to wear with the new capes.

Uncle Wiggily's Bedtime Stories

By HOWARD GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE BOB CAT'S TRAP.

Copyright, 1923, by MClure Newspaper Syndicate.

One day when the bad Bob Cat was out walking in the forest, wishing he had something good to eat, all of a sudden he reached the cave of the Fox. The Fox was scattering dirt and leaves around the doorway of his den, as if covering something up.

"What is going on here?" asked the Bob Cat. "Was there an accident?"

"Sort of," answered the Fox.

"What sort?" asked the Bob Cat.

"I tried to catch Uncle Wiggily in a molasses trap," said the Fox, "but the little ant told him about it and the rabbit didn't come in to have his ears nibbled. Now I have to cover up with dirt and leaves the molasses I spread, for it's so sticky that I get stuck in it myself every time I go in and out."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the Bob Cat.

"What's the matter," asked the Fox.

"To think of trying to catch Uncle Wiggily with molasses" laughed the Bob Cat. "That't pretty good. Ho! Ho!"

"Perhaps you think you car set a trap that will catch the rabbit so we can nibble his ears," sneered the Fox, sarcastic like.

"To be sure I can," said the Bob Cat.

"The Wolf and I couldn't," spoke the Fox.

"You went at it wrong," snickered the Bob Cat. "He has too sharp eyes to be fooled by you. Now what you want to do is to get Uncle Wiggily's glasses away from him. Then he can't see what is going on and he'll easily be caught in a trap. I'll do it. Leave it to me."

"But if you go near him to take his glasses he'll see you and run," said the Fox.

"There's a dusting brush for Nurse Jane!" said the bunny.

"I'll not take his glasses—I'll get the sly weasel to do that," whispered the Bob Cat. "And when the glasses are gone I'll find a way to get Uncle Wiggily into my trap."

"Let's see you," cried the Fox, and the Bob Cat made his plans. He got his friend the weasel to help, and one day when Uncle Wiggily set out to look for an adventure the weasel sneaked up behind the bunny rabbit and took his glasses.

"Now he can't see the Bob Cat's trap," whispered the weasel, and he ran off through the woods to tell the Bob Cat to get ready.

The Bob Cat had made what he called a trap near his den. He found a board with a hole in it and then he called the Fox.

"Now, Mr. Fox," said the Bob Cat, "when Uncle Wiggily comes along as he is sure to do, stick your tail through the hole in the board."

"What good will that do?" asked the Fox.

"Lots of good," answered the Bob Cat. "Not having his glasses, Uncle Wiggily will think your tail is a dusting brush. He will want to get it for Nurse Jane. But just as he comes up and reaches for your taly, that is in the hole, you pull your tail out! Uncle Wiggily will be so surprised that he'll stand still and I'll jump out and catch him. Then We'll nibble his ears."

So the two bad animals made ready. The Fox stuck his tail through the hole in the board, hiding behind it himself with the Bob Cat. Along came Uncle Wiggily, without his glasses. Dimly he saw the waving taly of the Fox.

"Ah, ha! There is a dusting brush for Nurse Jane!" said the bunny rabbit gentleman out loud, and the Fox and Bob Cat hearing this, snickered to themselves. "I'll get it for her," went on Uncle Wiggily. "Or since I am in a hurry to look for my glasses, which I must have lost, I will fasten the brush here so it can't blow away and Nurse Jane can come and get it when she is ready. Yes, I'll fasten the brush here."

So saying, and before the Fox and Bob Cat knew what he was doing, Uncle Wiggily took a clothes pin from his pocket, and snapped it on the tail of the Fox that stuck through the hole.

"There!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. "That will keep the brush from blowing way until I send Nurse Jane after it."

And away hopped the bunny, and on account of the clothespins on his tail the Fox couldn't pull himself loose from the hole in the board.

"Oh, wow!" howled the Fox when Uncle Wiggily had gone. "Is this the best trap you can set Mr. Bob Cat? Oh, take that pinching pin from my tail. Take it off! O wow!"

And filled with sorrow and shame the Bob Cat did. His trap didn't work after all. Nurse Jane was quite surprised, later in the day, when she went to get the "brush" Uncle Wiggily told her he had pinned fast for her. It was gone, for the Fox took his tail away.

"I think it was a trick of those bad animals," Nurse Jane said, and so it was. Thus the bunny's ears were saved once more, and if the snow ball doesn't hide under the doormat and trip up the milkman when he brings cream for the cat's breakfast. I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Tommie's kite.

Lace Makes Ideal Dance Frock For Late Spring Wear

By ELOISE

THE ideal dance frock for spring and early summer wear is made of delicate lace hung on straight simple lines. Cream, white and even colors, in pastel shades, are favored over black for spring wear. The model is usually draped over a slip of crepe, satin or silk and the sleeveless mode is in vogue now.

This model is an excellent illustration of the new lace gowns for 1923. It is cream lace over white satin crepe. The low girdle is of colored velvet and one may choose the color most suited to one's beauty. A rich blue tone is lovely with rose green and orchid coming in for their full share of popularity. The girdle is then highly decorated with colorful little satin flowers and buds and placed at a low waist-line. This type of frock would make an exquisite model for the attendants of the June bride. Since white weddings are very fashionable just now cream or white lace for the bridesmaids is just the thing. Each maid may wear a different colored girdle or hat.

At 26 She's Real City Councillor

English Girl Youngest To Gain Position

Doris Fitt, Once Theatrical Manager, Is Elected In Norwich

Miss Doris Fitt.

Miss Doris Fitt, 26-year-old English girl, has been one of the leading citizens of her town for some time, despite her youth. As a theatrical manager in England she has gained national notice and has been an important factor in the business world of her city.

Her most recently acquired distinction, however, is that of the youngest city councilor in England. She was elected to the city council of Norwich and took her seat a few weeks ago. Miss Fitt is a woman of the wholesome English type and reminds one of one of our own American college girls, simple, unaffected and enthusiastic.

Her pet aversion is facetious remarks and puns about her name. Her favorite pastime is watching a good play.

OUR WOMAN LAWMAKERS.

Minnie D. Craig (Mrs. Edward O.) is one of the first two women elected to the North Dakota legislature. She was endorsed and elected as representative by the Nonpartisan league farmers. Mrs. Craig was born in Maine and educated there at high schoolsand normal school and then attended the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston. Upon leaving school she became a teacher and taught in Maine and North Dakota. She married Edward O. Craig, a banker, in 1908. Since her marriage she has been very active in civic affairs. She has served on the board of education and has been president of the county federation of Nonpartisan Women's Clubs.

WORLD IS TALKING ABOUT THESE WOMEN

Wisconsin's champion girl pork raiser is Miss Vera Divan of Monroe. During the last season she won nearly 100 ribbons and gathered in more than $500 in cash prizes by showing her "six little pigs" at the county fairs.

After serving 13 years as county jailer in Texas, Mrs. Elizabeth Conway has retired to private life.

Mrs. Sue R. Weentz, appointed a deputy sheriff of Gloucester county, is the first woman to occupy that office in New Jersey.

Miss Margaret C. Montville of Kansas City has received a patent on an improved foot rest to be used in shoe shining parlors.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Graham Bread—One and onehalf cups white flour, one and onehalf cups graham flour, two teaspoons soda (level), one and three-quarter cups sour milk, two tablespoons melted butter, one teaspoon salt, one cup raisins. Mix dry ingredients, add milk, then raisins. Bake in moderate oven in a loaf tin.

Escalloped Steak — Purchase round steak, trim, cut into servings, roll generous in flour, pack in baking dish, salt and pepper to taste. Onions may be added. Cover with water and bake in oven until tender.

SUGGESTIONS

Making Covers for Cushions and Pillows—When making covers for chair cushions and sofa pillows, cut both back and front of the cover about two and one-half inches longer than the pillow to be used. Sew up, leaving the extra length open and turn a double three-quarter-inch hem on both back and front of cover. Sew small dress snaps on inside of hem on front of slip and the corresponding half of the snap on outside of hem on the back of slip, insert cushion and fasten snaps. On an ordinary sized cushion use about six snaps, thus the opening will not gap and it is no trouble to remove covers for laundering.

Absorbent Cotton for Pressing—Many of us use a bath towel when pressing laces and embroidery, but you will find this a better way. Take an old sheet and make a pad with a layer of absorbent cotton, width and length desired for ironing board. Sew tape on to tie on board and you will find it works beautifully, quite well enough to more than pay for the trouble of making.

Iron Handles—The making of a perfect electric iron still involves the problem of providing a cool handle. Like the famous briar pipe of England whose bowl never gets hot, no matter how dry the smoking mixture, the iron must keep a cool handle for the ironer's palm. The advertising of a standard grade of iron always includes the explanation of its handle. Some handles are detachable, others fit the hand exactly and so conserve strength. The electric iron has been perfected electrically, now it is being refined mechanically.

Silk Tests—The quality of silk may be found by taking one part of nitric acid to twenty parts of water into which should be dipped a few threads raveled from the warp. In a few minutes, if this is pure silk it will turn yellow; If cotton, it will be unchanged. In silk goods adulteration will be found in the warp alone. To test the strength of silk fabrics, no acids are necessary.

The Ways of a Widow

By Grace Phelps

ELSIE AND THE RECTOR MEET WESTON

Since Greenbriar was not a terminal, the returning travelers were obliged to go into New York and take a local train home. It was not yet seven o'clock when Elsie, shivering in the darkness of the train shed at Grand Central Station, joined the Rev. Michael Sinclair on the platform.

There was no familiar face to see them alight, a fact for which Elsie was profoundly thankful. Apparently, the young rector gave no thought to the unconventionality of their arrival.

"We shall have half an hour for breakfast," he said consulting his watch, "and plenty of time after that to catch the train home. Let me see,' he looked at the time table as best he could in the uncertain light. "That train will get us in a few minutes before nine. What time did you say the auction was advertised?"

"Ten o'clock," Elsie replied.

The Rev. Michael nodded thoughtfully. "Not much time to lose but we will make it. I don't know much about the ethics of an auction sale but this one will be stopped before it begins, ethics or no ethics! I had thought," he added, as they made their way into the grotto restaurant and found a table, "I had thought of telegraphing Mrs. Murray, but it would have been impossible to make matters clear to her in a telegram. As it is, I am afraid she will think it an unwarrantable impertinence!"

"At first, yes," Elsie, who knew Nan's temper better than her companion, agreed. "But you will have nearly an hour to explain why you are interfering. And," with a shy smile, "I don't believe you will need all that time from what I have seen of your powers of persuasion recently!"

The smile, rather than the words delighted him. He had all but forgotten the stirring fight at the state capital. Having won it and thereby defeated Andrew L. Morgan in one quarter, he had turned all his thoughts and energies toward spoiling the latter's vengeance in another direction, in this instance, Nan's.

He was not so far committeed to that fight yet, however, that he could not enjoy the present moment with his charming fellow crusader. Elsie, feeling at her worst, as every woman does after a night in a sleeper, had no inkling that the light in the Rev. Michael's eyes had any significance for her. It was, she argued, enthusiasm for the fight ahead of him. She sighed. Everyone, it seems, was fighting Nan's battles while she herself was nothing more than an errand girl. Nobody even gave her a thought.

The Rev. Michael was all concern, immediately, when he heard that sigh.

"Im afraid you have been imposed upon," he said solicitously. "Miss Garfield did not know you had been ill, else she would have sent another messenger. Why, you must have got directly out of bed to go to the train!"

Elsie colored. It was almost as if he had read her thoughts.

"It was nothing. I was well enough to be up and around, only I was depressed, ashamed of myself. I was only too glad to be able to do something to help Nan, after the miserable way I had treated her."

"You have nothing to be ashamed of!" he declared. "You did not know all the circumstances and your suspicions were natural enough, I think—" he put one hand out to where Elsie's was lying on the table.

But he was not destined to say what he thought, just then. The grotto door opened and Bert Weston rushed over to them.

Librarian Urges Right Use of Reading Rooms

"We look forward to the day when we can have a reading room for the men and one for the women," L. C. Burke, assistant librarian declared when he read that the University of Pennsylvania was to have separate reading rooms for its co-eds.

"I think the idea is sound basically, but practically impossible for us now. If we had reading rooms large enough and other facilities it would work, but with our space one room probably would be crowded one day and empty on the next.

The most practical thing to do now would be to change the sentiment of the students. The library is the hub of the university, and if they come here to study, other features ought to be eliminated. That every one should realize that to give a square deal to his neighbor he should allow him to study, was the remedy suggested by Burke.

Gods Influential In Time Of Old King Tut

"The gods of the Egyptian religion at the time of King Tutankhanmen played a large part in the daily life of the people," says W. G. Payne, instructor in the department of philosophy.

"The very abundance of gods made their religion a vivid influence in their lives. Though they did not comprehend the pre ence of an all-powerful God, they realized the existence of conditions beyond their control, and hence the gods of rain, wind, earth, sea, and fire were worshipped to avoid evil or harm to their family or property, besides numerous others.

"The Egyptians never abandoned an old god for a new one, but simply added the new god to their religious museum," said the Rev. Robert S. Loring, of the First Unitarian church in Milwaukee. For this reason, the religion became overstuffed with strange and useless gods."

Northwestern Man "Sees" With Nerves

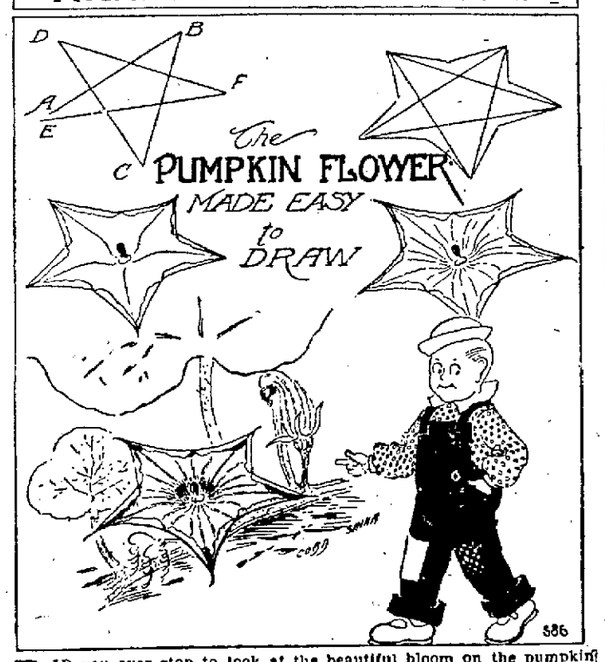

Blindness has proved to be only a slight handicap to Carl Bostrum, a student of journalism at Northwestern university, whose sensitized facial nerves enable him to "feel" his way about. The delicate variations in air pressure indicate to him the presence of buildings, trees, streets and other objects, he says.

"You recognize buildings by the light rays emanating from them," he declared. "I know them by their influences upon the air about them."

Bostrom finds his way around the campus buildings without aid and the only difficulty he experiences is when storms prevent his "seeing."

Kiddies-Can-Do-It

By Uncle Cobb Shinn

DID you ever stop to look at the beautiful bloom on the pumpkin vine? It is truly a beautiful flower, but most of us never pay any attention to it because it is so common. It is a perfect five pointed star, each point being very sharp because along the edges are the prettiest hems of the ruffled margin of the flower. Their color is the most vivid yellow. If the pumpkin were as rare as roses we would no doubt appreciate this magnificent flower far more.

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to prepare, and saves you about $2.

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, good and tastes very pleasant.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

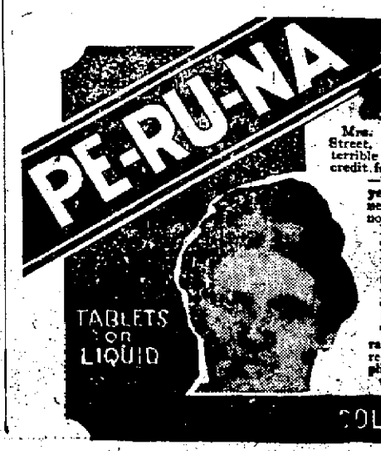

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

I wish every sufferer from a catarrhal disease would take Pe-ru-na."

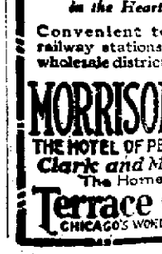

There are thousands, pain racked and miserable as the result of some catarrhal complication who could just as well be strong and healthy.

W. Philadelphia, Pa. — "When I cleaned house last April I must have overlifted, for after that I had pains and aches all the time and was so discouraged I could hardly do my own housework, and I could not carry a basket of groceries from the store nor even four squares without getting [illegible] pains in my back and abdomen and lower limbs. I went to visit a friend in Mt. Holly, N. J., and she said, 'Mrs. Butler, why don't you take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' OLD TIME COSTUMES ARE TIGHT FIT

There was much moaning and groaning at Cosmopolitan studios recently during the filming of the elaborate Paramount production, "When Knighthood Was in Flower," starring Marion Davies, which will be the feature at the Majestic for ten days starting Wednesday.

In this day of freedom for women it went pretty hard for the queen, the princess and the ladies in waiting to confine their waists in the stiff stays which the costumes of the period demand. Miss Davies, who plays the part of Princess Mary Tudor, was the most uncomplaining and cheerfully donned her stiff, high-necked waists, and long, full skirts every day. Some of the ladies in waiting were not so happy and several of them almost went on strike.

Fifteen costumes designed by experts and made at the most exclusive Fifth Avenue shop in New York are worn by Miss Davies in the gorgeous scenes which reflect the glories of the French and English courts during the time of King Henry VIII. Each costume has its own set of specially designed jewelry.

How Webster extricates them from their difficulties and wins for himself the Governor's daughter, is a most interesting evening's entertainment.

There is also being shown the latest news weekly and "Sweet and Pretty" a two reel comedy.

ORPHEUM OFFERS EXCELLENT BILL

The present bill at the Orpheum boasts of six acts, each 100 percent entertaining.

"At his second recital in Carnegie Hall, Josef Lhevinne gave another demonstration of piano playing carried to a point of technical perfection unequalled by any living master of the keyboard.

"He has come nearer to solving the mechanical problems of the modern pianoforte than any one else. Indeed, even such virtuosi as Josef Hofmann and Godowski, not to mention all the others, could learn something of value from him in attaining the muscular relaxation, the elimination of apparent effort, the communication of power, through weight distribution."—Max Smith, Eminent Critic.

Demetral And Albright Set For Go Tonight

Jack's Silver Trophy Is Hung Up As Prize

Whether or not Jack Albright, New Yorker grappler keeps his Canadian trophy or turns it over to Jimmie Demetral, local wrestler will be decided tonight when these two boys meet at Turner Hall in a bout to the finish.

Albright wrestled Demetral here sometime ago and won one fall from the local Greek. Demetral agreed to meet Albright again if he would make 170 pounds. The Gotham mat artist signified his willingness and will enter the ring at that weight.

Albright, under the terms of the contract will give his beautiful silver trophy won in Canada, to Demetral if the local Greek can turn the trick and beat him. This necessitates two falls.

Seats for the bout have been going fast and a capacity crowd is expected to attend.

In the first bout Young Gotch and Jack Barns will meet. Gotch is well known here but Barns, who hails from Iowa is a stranger in the midst of local mat followers.

Chicago Will Buck Buffalo For A.B.C. Meet

New York City Wants Meet Again After Two Years

MILWAUKEE—Keen competition will be given Chicago in her fight for the 1924 tournament of the American Bowling Congress, it has developed here. Buffalo, which held the meet two years ago, is again a strong contender and may be selected as the site in the annual convention Friday.

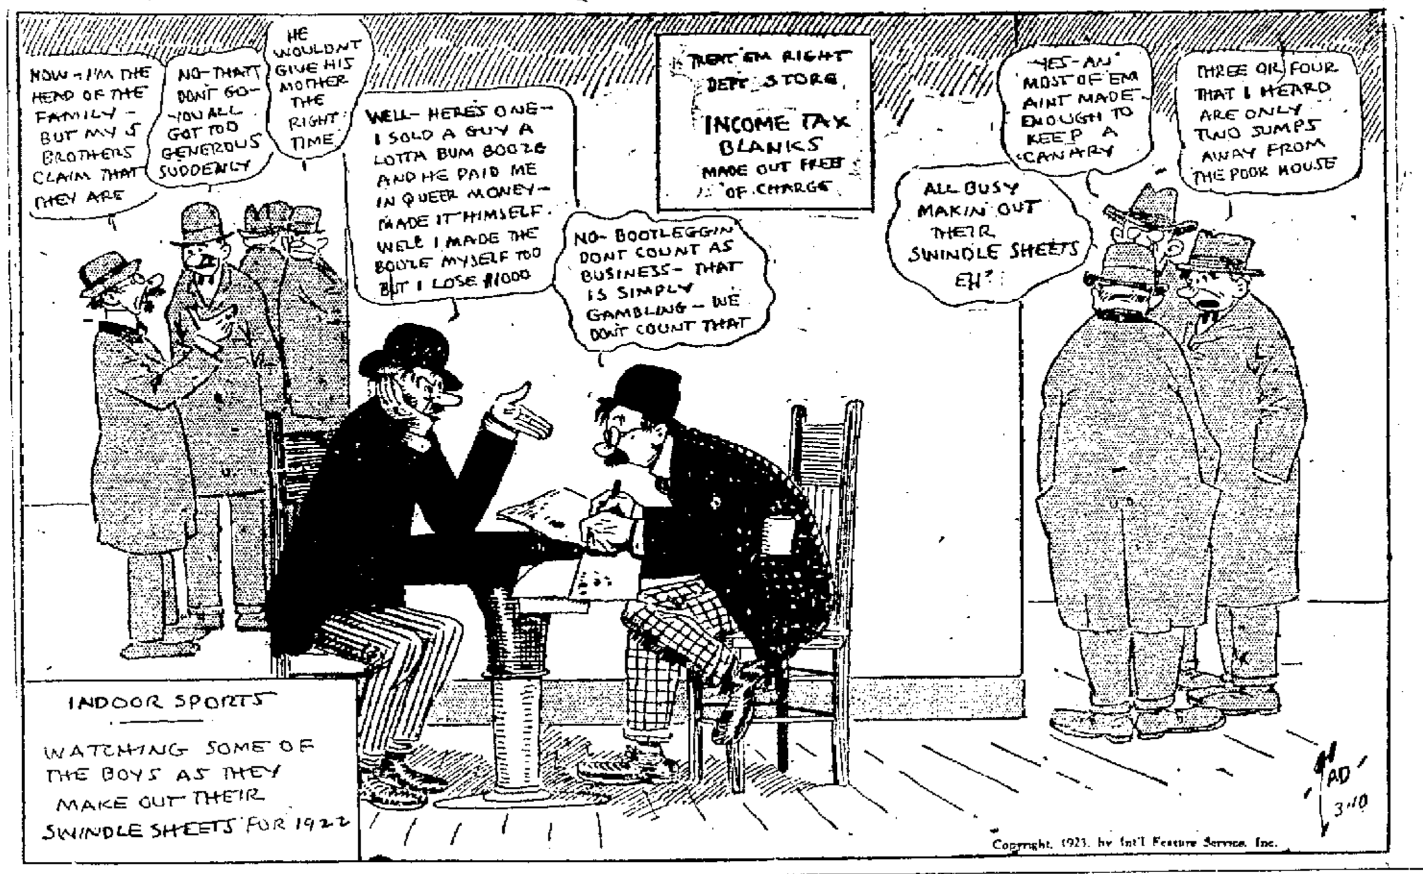

William H. Pollack, president of the Buffalo Bowling association, who has been here three days, asserts the A. B. C. will be taken back to the Bison City next year.

Although Chicago will have 160 delegates at the annual convention, who will all vote for the Windy City, there is every indication that without the support of other midwest towns, she will not draw the assignment. Buffalo bowlers are not slated to roll in the tournament until March 25 and 26 but the entire delegation of 30 teams are preparing to be here for the meeting.

Chicago has not had a national pin event in 11 years and is out to bring the 1924 home. Chicago is entitled to one. She has furnished no less than 322 teams in this year's show and due to past records should be considered next year.

Roundy Says:

The Wisconsin Team this year, To Me, Was About The Neatest And Smartest I Ever Saw At Wisconsin.

Never before in history did a basketball game at Wisconsin have the color and old pep for a finisher as the one just night. And no basketball team ever gave you better team play and playing as a unit at old Wisconsin.

* * *

Williams and Tebell went out of the basketball limelight in a blaze of glory for the wearing of the wonderful emblem." The wonderful demonstration given by the student body and townspeople was the greatest ever accorded a badger player. Did you notice that they exchanged words while in that group and the smile that came off their face? It was a "come on Skinny" type—they were the happiest boys in the world.

* * *

It made a man feel proud to get out there and yell for them and the student body did wonderful work last night with their paying of homage to these two wonderful men who are without a doubt the greatest guards in basketball history of college playing.

* * *

Tebell and Williams have taken part in three sports for three years and never in that time have they caused coaches trouble with writing off examinations. Two brilliant men in mind as well as body. When you have the mind in wonder harmony with the body the result is just what these two boys gave you which will live in history of sports at Wisconsin for ever and in minds of fans far and wide for ever.

* * *

You could see the fans. It took a lot of grit to hold them back from rushing right out in that group and shaking hands with them. Hundreds of fans told me. Gee I would love to shake those boys hands."

* * *

Les Gage the forward on Wisconsin this year to my mind did more under a handicap than any other man that ever wore the "W". He is not a strong fellow, was green and was working under a handicap from early season games. Gage is a fighter and in the last three games has led the conference by a mile in baskets and made six baskets last night. Gage today is the best forward in the conference, carries out the Meanwell system to the letter, is as clean a player that ever strode onto a floor has a fine personality. This column is glad to congratulate you Gage.

* * *

Coach Mann of Indiana: "Williams is the greatest basketball guard of any time, college or place. He and Tebell will never be seen again as one combination working on one team together. The trip to Madison was worth the time to see these two men play.

* * *

Dr. Meanwell: "It is the smartest team I ever coached to carry my system out, but not the strongest.

* * *

Dr. Meanwell: "Wisconsin will play Iowa, Illinois and Ohio next year at basketball and drop Minnesota, Purdue and Michigan.

* * *

A warning: Dr. Meanwell is under no contract with Wisconsin to coach basketball! Some heads better get busy and get him a nice new contract and a big boost in wages in it or he might take a trip with a traveling bag, you can't tell. That gym will be plenty big enough if he ever gets away from Wisconsin.

* * *

Wisconsin just made a sucker out of Indiana. Any time you have this man Meanwell around, you are scaring a lot of basketball coaches to death. He is too smart for them.

In plain words, "out-classes them" and you would see every coach in the conference rusing to town to carry his grip to the depot to get him many a mile away from the conference. If any other school in the conference could get him they would dismiss classes and make it a holiday and taking a subscription up at once and put his bust on the campus, and Wisconsin is leaving this bird walk around without a contract! Get Meanwell a sheet of paper and with a bunch of new dollar signs on it with a raise of big proportion and have him park his right paw with a pen and start a scribbling.

* * *

No fans in this town should miss the big wrestling match tonight regardless of snow drifts. The snow will no doubt hurt the attendance as farmers will be unable to get here. The men are not a liking each other any too well and Jimmie is determined to make it a rough night in Turner hall.

* * *

Albright is cock sure of throwing Jimmie, but will have to come in the ring with less weight than last time and might find himself in a weak way in a grueling match. Tickets are going in big league shape and taking the weather under consideration the show will still be a big house.

Luis Firpo K. O.'s Bill Brennan In 12th Round Of "Little Title" Go

South American Lacks Polish But Has Make-up Of Fighter

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Luis Angel Firpo, a giant in fighting mold, was established today in the front rank of heavyweight title contenders. The big man from the Argentine last night hurdled the first obstacle in the path leading to a match with Jack Dempsey, the champion, when he knocked out Bill Brennan, scarred veteran of the ring, in the 12th round of a spectacular 15 round match at Madison Square Garden.

Bewildered by a steady flow of blood from a gash over his left eye and held at bay by Brennan's crafty defensive ability and ring generalship, the South American staged a furious come-back in the 12th round to end the bout with dramatic suddenness. A series of sharp right uppercuts drove Brennan to cover, and two sledgehammer thrusts to the head sprawled him on the canvas for the count of 10.

BUENOS AIRES—Buenos Aires went wild last night when the news was received that Luis Angel Firpo had knocked out Bill Brennan in New York. The bulletin bearing tidings arrived in Buenos Aires only a few minutes after the bout ended.

Thousands of persons immediately formed into processions and marched through the streets of the city, shouting and singing and hailing Firpo as the world's future champion.

Firpo today was regarded by critics as the most formidable heavyweight contender uncovered since Dempsey fought his way to the top. Though still crude and unpolished in his footwork, boxing ability and ring generalship, the South American demonstrated that he possesses the essentials of ring greatness—courage, stamina, ability to absorb punishment and most important of all a terrific right handed punch.

The Chicagoan punished Firpo at close quarters in the next few rounds, and opened up with a fresh aggressive in the 10th and 11th sessions, jabbing Firpo about the head and blocking most of his rival's counter efforts. Undaunted, however, Firpo came back in the next round to batter his way to victory.

The South American's next engagement according to Promoter Tex Rickard is likely to be against the winner of the Floyd Johnson-Jess Willard match scheduled to take place at the Yankee stadium May 12, with the probability that the winner will meet Dempsey.

Hoosiers No Match For Meanwell Five; Gage Is Real Star

"Les" Gets Six Field Goals And Jumps Into Eighth Place In Individual Scoring In "Big Ten"; Team Gets Send Off

By BRYN GRIFFITHS

"DOC" MEANWELL'S University of Wisconsin net quintet went into a tie for the "Big Ten" conference championship a tthe armory here last night when the highly touted Indiana five lost to the Cardinal 35 to 17 in a game that was much more exciting than the score indicates.

"Les" Mann's Hoosiers were completely outplayed during the entire 40 minutes of battle and only for about three minutes toward the middle of the second half did they show much class at all.

The Badger squad certainly wound up the 1922-23 season in great style and was given a great ovation by the 2,500 fans who were lucky enough to secure pasteboards admitting them to the last game.

Much hasn't been said of "Les" Gage, Wisconsin forward who has been the chief point getter for Meanwell this year —but "Les" finished his career at Wisconsin in a manner expected of a forward on a championship quintet. Gage added six baskets for his share of the points, making a total of 74 points for the year and putting him in eighth place in the "Big Ten" individual scoring column. "Les" shot them from any and every angle and many of his shots, although missing the hoop, were too close to be funny.

Gibson at center caged five field goals—and the Indiana team nor the hundreds of rooters that saw them caged will ever forget them. They were of the long variety and brought the fans to their feet.

Capt. Gus Tebell didn't get in on the field goal tossing but his throwing of free throws was something that pleased followers of the team. Gus made five free throws in five attempts—giving him a record of 1000 per cent in his last game for Wisconsin.

So much has been said about the wonderful work of Tebell and Williams at the guard positions that it's almost impossible to exaggerate their work. They are, as everyone knows the nucleus of the Badger squad and without them Meanwell wouldn't have much to boast.

Spooner and Elsom, forwards who Meanwell calls "his youngsters" also got into the spirit of the game last night and helped give the retiring members of the team a real send-off. They played great ball and caused a lot of worry to coach Mann on the Hoosier bench.

Nyikos, Indiana forward who has been heralded throughout the conference as the last word when it comes to basket tossing was either away off form last night or has been greatly overrated. He got two field goals and made only three free throws in eight attempts.

Two U. W. Wrestlers Enter Conference Meet

Report of the Markets

Report for March 13, 1923

Wheat Prices Higher; Corn, Oats Firmer

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO—With no aggressive selling in evidence wheat averaged a little higher in price today, during the early dealings. Firmness of Liverpool quotations tended to strengthen the market here, and so too did reports that British stocks of wheat were decreased whereas European continental demand for wheat continued. Besides 926,000 bushels falling off in the U. S. visible supply total was announced, in contrast with 11,000 bushels increase a week ago. The opening, which varied from unchanged figures to ¼c higher, with May 1.20⅜ to 1.20½ and July 1.15¼@1.15½, was followed by slight general gains and then something of a reaction.

Subsequently, selling on the part of houses with eastern connections was accompanied by reports that Canadian offerings were below the cost of wheat stored on vessels at the eastern end of the Great Lakes.

CORN—Corn and oats were firmer with wheat and as a result of smallness of receipts. After opening at ⅛ off to ⅛ up, May 75 to 75⅛, the corn market scored a little advance all around.

In the last part of the day corn became depressed when wheat turned weak. Corn closed unsettled ⅞ to 1½.

OATS—Oats started ⅛ to ¼c higher, May 45, and later continued to harden.

PROVISIONS—Higher quotations on hogs gave a life to provisions.

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Execution of buying orders delayed by yesterday's suspension of wire service imparted a firm tone to opening prices in today's stock market. Sugars continued in good demand in response to the creation of a new high record of 5¾ cents per pound for Cuban raw sugar. Stromberg Carburetor advanced 1¼ points and Associated Drygoods duplicated yesterday's high record. Some of the minor oils were heavy. Prices continued their upward course, with the demand embracing the steels, equipments, motors, rubbers, a few dividend paying railroad issues and a select assortment of specialties. Foreign exchanges opened steady.

Colleges Gain In Attendance Figures Show

Enrollment Everywhere Shows Increase Over Previous Years

Attendance at American universities and colleges for the present collegiate year exceeds past records in all except a few instances, according to a detailed report of 140 approved institutions in the current issue of "School and Society," written by Raymond Walters, dean of Swarthmore college and an associate editor of the journal. The increase over last year in full-time regular students was two per cent. In grand total enrollment (including summer school and part-time students) the increase was 14 per cent.

The measure in which attendance has soared since the war is shown in statistics of 25 typical universities which now have 56 per cent more full-time students than in 1918 and 87 per cent more in grand total enrollment.

The largest institution in the United States in number of full-time regular students is the University of California with 14,061. Columbia university is second with 10,308, Illinois third with 9,285, Michigan fourth with 8,703 and Minnesota fifth with 8,586. Wisconsin is eighth with 7,241 students.

Counting all resident students, full-time, part-time and summer school, Columbia leads with a grand total enrollment of 27,339. California is second with 20,283. Next in order are the University of Pennsylvania with 14,584, College of the City of New York with 14,067 and New York university with 12,336. In this list Wisconsin is ninth, with 10,770 students.

Wisconsin Foundrymen's Association To Meet At University

The first state-wide gathering of the Wisconsin Foundrymen's association will take place in Madison on April 4 and 5 in the form of a "Metals Convention" at which some 302 foundries in 82 Wisconsin cities are expected to be represented. This convention will be in cooperation with the department of mining and metallurgy of the University of Wisconsin.

The American Foundrymen's association is giving its support to the Badger state convention, according to a letter from its president, C. R. Messinger of Milwaukee, who says: "I want you to know that I think this will be a fine thing for the foundrymen of the state. The foundry industry is an important one to the state of Wisconsin, but in the past has been loosely organized.

A huge exhibit of foundry machinery and equipment will be held in the University stock pavilion during the convention. A program including six technical sessions and visits to Madison manufacturies asd the Forest Products laboratory is now being arranged.

The society for Steel Treating, with members in many middle-western cities will hold a meeting at the university at the same time, and will have a separate exhibit of steel-treating methods, appliances, and results.

The Wisconsin section of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers will also convene then.

A special program for wives and daughters, including meetings in the University home economics department, visits to the capitol, and historical museum, exhibits of swimming and other sports by the women's physical educational department and a banquet is also being planned.

Offers Course In Scout Work At University

Miss Marion Trott, assistant director of Camp Andre, the National Girls Scout camp at Briarcliff New York, will be brought here by the department of physical education April 23 to take charge of a course in scout work.

"The course will be an extensive study in the activities of girl scouts, and will be conducted for those interested in becoming leaders," says Miss A. Brownell, instructor in the department.

"The work will be carried on in a troop, just as the girl scouts are trained, and one hour every day for two weeks wil be devoted. If more than thirty-two girls sign up each troop will meet three days a week for three weeks."

Work of this nature has been done by Miss Trott at Smith, Vassar, Radcliff, Cornell, New York University, and Mount Holyoke. Girls who intend to become leaders in summer camps, or who expect to do recreational work in stores or factories will find the course of value.

Miss Brownell desires that all girls sign before spring vacation, and a slip for this purpose will be posted on the bulletin board of the department first floor Lathrop hall.

A group of representatives of the various organizations of the Bell Telephone System will visit the University from March 14 to 17 to make the acquaintance of this year's graduates and confer with them about the opportunities in the telephone business.

According to Mr. Gefke of the Wisconsin Telephone company, the Bell System, which is composed of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the associated operating telephone companies and the Western electric company, has available this year a considerable number of positions, affording a wide choice of work and location, for qualified college men. These positions are in the fields of research and technical development, application engineering, accounts manufacturing, installation, sales, and distribution.

The rapid growth of the telephone industry and the increasing complexity of the telephone art constantly calls for new potential leadership in its technical, administrative, and commercial fields. During the last three years the net assets of the System have increased from about one and one-half billions of dollars to over two billion; its annual revenues from about three hundred eighty million dollars to nearly five hundred fifty million; and its owned and connected telephone stations from eleven and three-quarter million to over fourteen million.

The estimated growth of the next five years exceeds all previous records for a like period. Such a rate of expansion entails the most searching study of the telephone market, careful engineering for the most economic results from the annual expenditure involved, and effectively coordinated supervision of the manufacturing, construction, maintenance and operating activity that will follow.

Gun And Blade Has Star Cast For Play

"The Gun and Blade club believes that it has collected the finest aggregation of amateur stars ever gotten together at the university for a musical show of this kind in its production "The Blue Bandits." They are sparing no efforts to make this production one of the most notable events of this kind ever staged here," said Mr. John T. McDonough, who is author and director of the play.

The cast of "The Blue Bandits" is hard at work rehearsing to make the play a success, William Hayes '23, says. Tickets may be obtained beginning today at Hooks' Music store.

Anonouncement of the cast has been made as follows: Carrol Robb '25, Hugo Kuester '25, Ephrian Peterson '24, Bernardt Berndt '24, Lucile Hanson '24, Clarence Iverson '24, Hilda Schultz '25, John Tollefson '25, Don Welch '24, Reed Thorpe '24, A. F. Gilson '24, Gus Johnson '24, Andy Norgord '26, T. H. Ford '24, William Christensen '24, Helen Wood, grad., George Julius '24, John Jones, grad., R. W. Austerman '24. The chorus will be announced later.

New Youth Movement Delegates Coming Here

Three delegates from foreign universities will explain the "New Youth" movement to the students of the university on March 29, 30 and 31.

They are making a tour of universities in this country with two objects. They wish to tell of youth movements in their own countries and to find a basis on which the youth of their country can cooperate with the youth of ours to develop a spiritual renaissance. They represent universities in England, Czecho-Slovakia and Germany.

The plan is to hold a large meeting on the first day, possibly in the gym, and to devote the remaining two days to small discussion groups of fraternities and other campus organizations.

The international league of youth is working to unite young people, especially university students, who have certain fundamental ideas. These include a strong sentiment against the glorification of war, race hatred, the narrowness of class culture, and the control and hiring of convictions, especially in the press.

Alpha Pis Buy New Home At 112 Langdon

One of Wisconsin's newest national sororities has purchased a new home.

Alpha Mu chapter of Alpha Delta Pi, established here in 1920, now owns the Burr W. Jones home, 112 Langdon street, with lot front 140 feet on Langdon and extending back toward Lake Mendota sixty one feet, according to an announcement by the sorority yesterday. They will occupy their new home September 1.

The deed to the property was transferred from the Acacia alumni association to the sorority Saturday. The deal was made through the H. H. Koss, real estate company. The present home o the sorority at 135 Langdon street has been sold as a private residence.

The house committee, consisting of Marjorie Delbridge '23, Mildred Riesterer '24, and Bernice Rhode '24 say that the house is in such good condition that only a few minor remodelling changes and a small amount of redecorating will be necessary.

The house overlooks Lake Mendota. Chapter members expressed their approval of the home yesterday which is ideally suited to the needs of the sorority.

Acacia alumni association, from whom the property was purchased, are planning on building a new fraternity home on the lake shore with the aid of the active chapter of Acacia to be located adjoining the new sorority house.

The purchase prices of the sorority home was withheld in the announcement.

This is to certify that we purchased our homes from Clyde A. Gallagher. Our monthly payments have been much less than our home would rent for and we would not sell our homes for what we paid for them. We never knew it was so easy to own a home. Any family who wants to own a home can do so, if they consult Clyde A. Gallagher. His prices are right, his terms are reasonable. When you can live in your own new home and your payments are less than rent, it pays to own your home, because in a few years, under Clyde's system, your home is paid for and, also, you pay but the cost price, and in a few years your home is worth twice what you paid for it.

Here Is A Good Cause

HAVE you ever been just ill enough to have to stay in bed, or at least rest a great portion of each day, without feeling really uncomfortable? If you have, you know what it means to become deadly tired of "doing nothing", [illegible] also know how to appreciate an interesting book.

In the 19 tuberculosis sanatoria of Wisconsin there are nearly 1,300 men, women and children, in exactly that position. They are striving to regain their health by the rest, fresh air, and wholesome food route. A large number of them are not even obliged to remain in bed, but rest is absolutely essential to their recovery. Under these circumstances arises the problem of a moderate amount of amusement, one of the chief of which is reading. A few of the sanatoria have libraries, but the supply of books is far too small to adequately supply all the institutions.

To meet this need, the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association, an organization vitally interested in the welfare of the sanatoria, has issued an appeal for books, old or new, to be used in a library traveling about the state from one sanatorium to another. Persons discarding books, especially fiction and travel, from their libraries, are urged to communicate with the association, whose headquarters are at the Health Service Building, 558 Jefferson St., Milwaukee.

The Attack On Part Time Education

AT A recent hearing on a bill to let down the standards for attendance at part-time schools from the age of eighteen to the age of seventeen one father of ten children said: "What is a poor man to do if all his children must be educated up to eighteen years of age? Wouldn't it be better, instead of having all of them go to school for one day a week to pick out the most likely one and let him go on through high school and university while the others work?" Truly a remarkable solution to the problem of educating children! People can have one college graduate in the family if enough children help support the favored one through high school and college.

* * *

THE old idea that children exist to support the family, which Wisconsin and other progressive states have been fighting for years through compulsory education laws, mothers' pension laws, and various methods of public assistance, comes to life again in this recent attack upon Wisconsin part-time school laws. A few poor and misguided parents have been stirred up to protest against the loss of the small percentage of the earning power of their children of which they have been deprived by the requirements of one day in school. The investigation of specific cases of alleged disaster to the family through loss of wages due to this law has revealed in almost every instance the fact either that no such great disaster was pending or that there was some other method, such as mothers' pensions, change of employment, etc., for taking care of the family rather than to place its burdens upon the shoulders of a boy or girl under eighteen.

Twelve years ago Wisconsin took the lead in the policy of caring for a long neglected problem—the further education of those who go to work at an early age instead of going on to high school and college. Until 1911, although these boys and girls contributed materially to the producing of Wisconsin's wealth, the state and the local community spent nothing on their education. It spent generously on the education of those who were able and desirous of going on to high school and college. It paid no attention to those children who, along with adult workers, were actual contributors to the support of the education of the fortunate young people of their own age.

The law of 1911 required the establishment of schools for these employed children in cities of five thousand and over and their attendance between the ages of fourteen and sixteen for four hours a week at these schools.

There was considerable protest against the law. The schools themselves were naturally poor in the beginning. The children did not like to be "forced back into school". Employers found it inconvenient to let off their young employes for four hours a week. A few parents complained of the hardship of being deprived of the earnings for a half day a week. But on the whole, the idea was well accepted—so well that in 1917 the age was raised to 17 and the hours to eight per week. Attempts to improve the law further failed until 1921 when the legislature passed the bill to require half time attendance to 16 and eight hours a week to 18.

* * *

IN general, employers and labor have stood together in Wisconsin for the retention and extension of educational opportunities for young people who are working. A few of both groups and a few poorly informed and short sighted parents are now trying to force our standards down. They attack compulsion as an arbitrary thing. They fail to realize that these children cannot be trusted voluntarily to obtain for themselves the education that it is in the interest of society they should obtain; they cannot be expected to flock in voluntarily to school; to weigh fairly the immediate needs of their parents for financial help against their own needs for the future, and to secure individually from employers part-time arrangements which will make school attendance possible. Compulsion is not an arbitrary solution. It is the only practical one.

We have been striving for years to develop part time schools which, correlated with the practical experience of the young employe, will guarantee an education to the employed young person as valuable as, even though different, from a high school education. With the eighteen year upper limit and the half time feature to sixteen we have reached the place where the schools have some chance of making good this aim. Many of the part-time schools of the state are doing good work. None of them have yet reached the high standards which may be hoped for. If they are allowed to go on with the present age limits unchanged, in a few more years they will be able to offer a service to employed young people in Wisconsin which will have no more opposition than compulsory full time education to the age of fourteen now has.

Oh, what a pure and sacred thing
Is Beauty, curtained from the sight
Of the gross world, illumining
One only mansion with her light!
Unseen by man's disturbing eye—
The flower that blooms beneath the sea,
Too deep for sunbeams, does not lie.
Hid in more chaste obscurity.
A soul, too, more than half divine,
Where, through some shades of earthly feeling
Religion's softened glories shine,
Like light through summer foliage stealing,
Shedding a glow of such mild hue,
So warm, and yet so shadowy, too,
As makes the very darkness there
More beautiful than light elsewhere.

Western Civilization

European Disorder Is Lowering Prestige, Says Zion Worker.

The hold of Western civilization in the East has been greatly weakened by recent developments in Europe, says Dr. Chaim Weizmann, President of the Zionist World organization, who has just arrived in the U. S.

DR CHAIM WEIZMANN

"Rumor is busy in the East," said Dr. Weizmann. "An event in New York has a repercussion a few days later in Jerusalem and in Bagdad. Though there are no telephones and no press, in the Western sense, the rumor spreads by word of mouth, and what is whispered one day in Bagdad travels like a whirlwind to Cairo in a few days. As the rumor spreads it is distorted and twisted and makes for trouble.

"Bolshevist influence, which works via Angora, the Kemalist movement, the procrastination of Lausanne, friction between the allied powers, which finds its most significant expression in the Ruhr tangle—all these political perturbations find their swift reflection in the Near East and in Palestine. This European disorder unsettles the minds of the natives. It drags down European prestige and destroys the value of European standards in the eyes of the Eastern races. In the absence of the stabilizing force of Western civilization, other forces which appear in various guises in Palestine and elsewhere, take hold of the inflammable fancy of the Near Eastern populations. Sometimes these forces assume the forms of extreme and violent nationalism, and sometimes of an aggressive Pan-Islamism. In such soil the seeds planted by agitators of all kinds bring up a crop of confusion and unrest. In most cases these movements are essentially anti-European and therefore directed in general against Western civilization.

"And just as a stricken European world turns its eyes to the mighty Republic of the West as a great bulwark of civilization, exactly in the same way do the Jewish communities of Europe look to American Jewry for moral and material support in the upbuilding of Jewish life in Palestine."

WHY?

[To The Editor]—The American Red Cross attained a membership of nearly twenty million in the United States alone in 1918, just before the armistice. The record of this noble organization proves it to have been one of the very few really commendable activities either during or since the war. That praiseworthy record is too well known to need repeating here.

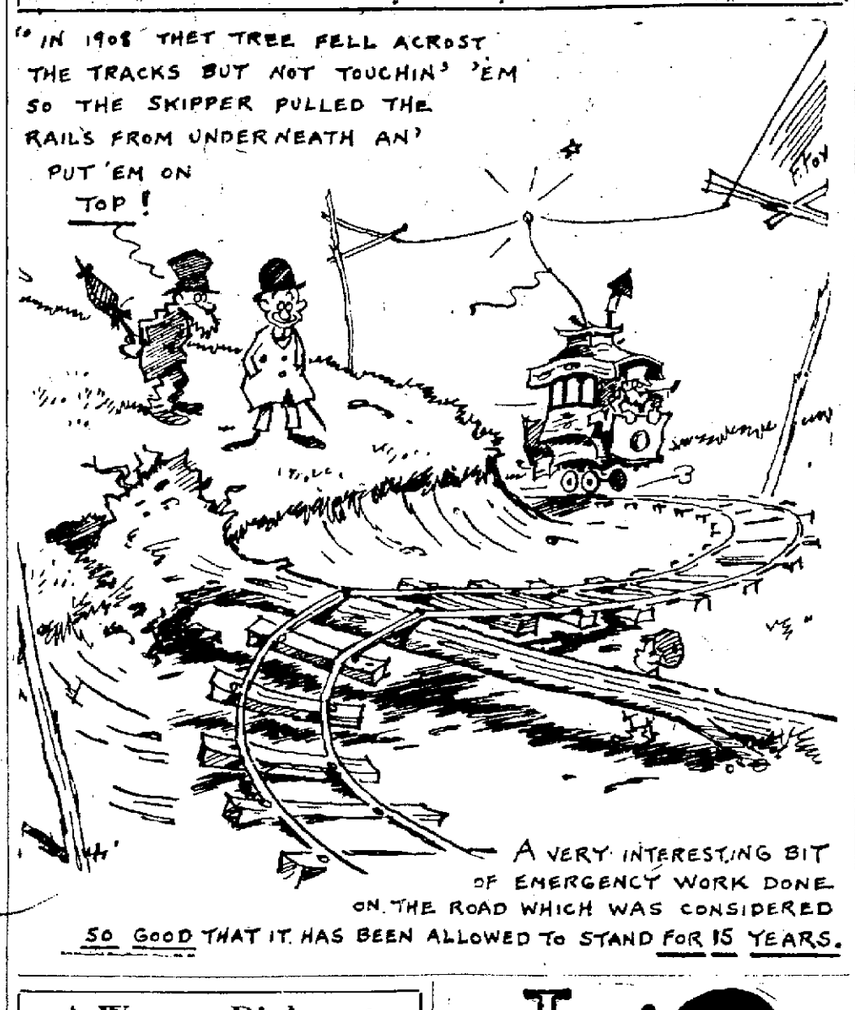

During six years of rather active connection with the organization, I have never read anything in its literature, nor heard any of its officials or field workers express any sentiments in opposition to war. Nothing about the horrors of war; its futility; its unrighteousness; its crime against civilization. Nothing that would tend to create sentiment against war. I have often wondered why. Just imagine what could have been accomplished by well directed effort among those twenty million members in the United States.

Some years ago almost the entire business district and many residences in a little city were swept away by a flood. The first essential work was that of protection for what was left of the city from the raging waters. No funds were available except individual contributions for relief. Red Cross officials refused to give any assistance whatever unless all contributions were turned over to them for disbursement with the provision that nothing whatever should be expended for the necessary protection.

Can it be possible that this is the national, and the international, policy of the Red Cross? Millions for the relief of the war stricken, but not one cent for war prevention!—A. P. J.

A Woman Diplomat

Miss Lucille Atcherson Will Occupy Unique Post.

Miss Lucile Atcherson will soon take her place as the first woman in the field of diplomacy in the United States. In 1921 a woman took the examinations for entrance into the diplomatic service for the first time. She failed. Miss Atcherson was the only one of the feminine trio that came through the most recent examinations successfully and several men failed.

LUCILLE ATCHINSON

An aspirant has to be prepared to answer any question about international law, diplomatic usage, the translation of French, or German, or Spanish, the natural, industrial and commercial resources and the commerce of the United States; American history, government and institutions, and the history since 1850 of Europe, Latin America and the Far East.

After one has finished doing this on paper one must appear in person before the board of examiners to take an oral examination.

She is a graduate of Smith college, class of '13. She spent a year taking a secretarial course at the University of Chicago, and for a while was secretary to President Thompson of Ohio State university. In 1916 she went to France, where she served in an executive capacity with Miss Anne Morgan's committee on devastated France, and later did philanthropic work in the Balkans. While in Paris she came into direct contact with the work of our embassy there.

Returning to the United States with a rather comprehensive knowledge of the work done in the United States embassy in Paris, she made investigation at the state department in Washington concerning entrance into the diplomatic service. She is now in Washington awaiting her appointment to a foreign post.

THE PASSING THRONG

From newsboy to the millionaire
The passing throng goes by each day.
The old man with his weight of care,
The maiden in her colors gay,
The mother with her babe in arms,
The dreamer and the man of might,
Grief's cruel scars and laughter's charms
Pass by the window, day and night.

Now slowly rides a corpse to find
The grave and its unbroken sleep,
And in the carriages behind
A score of sorrowing loved ones weep;
But scarcely has the hearse passed by
Upon its journey to the tomb,
When wreathed with smiles of love we spy
The faces of a bride and groom.

We cannot understand it all,
We cannot know why this is so.
From dawn until night's curtains fall
We see the people come and go,
Hope lights the eyes of youth today,
Tomorrow's care has left them dim,
Once this man proudly walked his way,
But now defeat has broken him.

Could we but watch, as God must do,
We'd see the struggling youth arise,
We'd see him brave his dangers through
And reach his goal and claim the prize,
And we might judge with gentler sight
The broken lives which come and go,
And better choose twixt wrong and right,
If we could know what God must know.

Grouch and Gout may now be seen swearing daily on the green.

Forget your coal bills, let 'em pass, now's the time for birds and bass.

Few children, who are daily exposed to tubercular infection fail to develop the disease later in life.

A cause of much illness,
There's the common house fly;
If you'll study its habits,
You'll understand why.

Most cases of tuberculosis are acquired in early childhood, developing into active lesions in late youth or early adult life.

Tests conducted by the New York city health department showed that 60 per cent of one, two and three-year-old children were susceptible to diphtheria.

Two prominent political enemies happened to be invited to the same banquet. The [illegible] was served rather frequently, and one of the politicians, looking straight at his opponent, got up and addressed the company.

"Gentlemen," said he, "I must inform you that when I get a little too much to drink I have the absurd habit of abusing a certain class of people; I hope no gentleman in the audience will consider this personal." And he sat down.

A moment later the other politician arose and said, "Gentlemen, when I have drunk rather freely and hear any person criticising a certain class of people, I have the [illegible] habit of kicking that person out of the company; I hope no gentleman here will take it as personal."

And then the drinks were passed around once more.

THE FOLLIES

No. 11.

The saxophone is the modern instrument of torture. It dates back to the time of Nero and it was used during the Spanish Inquisition. Historians want to be polite and so they write that Nero played a fiddle while Rome burned, but it was more likely a saxophone since Nero had a lot of brass, anyway. Besides he "horned in" on everything.

History plays us several of these [illegible] Columbus' sailors did not want to [illegible] overboard because they were afraid of [illegible] further. The truth of the matter is, [illegible] played a saxophone, and every time he practiced a storm came up. Marie Antoinette was so roughly treated because she taught saxophone lessons. Achilles and Hector had their famous fight because the latter borrowed Apollo used a sax and not a lyre. Achilles said that Hector himself was a liar. Achilles was quite mad because he had lost a sweetheart shooting dice with Menelaus the night before, and wrecked Hect-or. Which gave rise to the modern expression about saxophone pupils: "He plays like a Trojan."

Of course, there are some good sax players, but they are few and far between. One of them lives in Alaska, the second in the [illegible] and the third in Copenhagen. All three, by the way, are retired. Saxophone players in this country never retire; at three in the morning they are still busy. Most apartment houses don't need alarm clocks any more.

Frankly, we never thought Mr. Saxe possessed such an exaggerated sense of humor.

[To The Editor]—If the burden of taxation continues to increase as it has of late, in but a few years the ordinary citizen, the working man, can no longer hope to own his home.

He will have to be content with renting and occupying two or three rooms, as he does in European cities at the present time.

In the last 25 years the valuation of residence properties have multiplied two and one-half times, and the tax rate has multiplied by the same number, so that a piece of property pays six times as much taxes as it did 25 years ago.

In some cases the increase is more and in some cases it is less, but as near as I have been able to determine, a residence that paid $20 taxes in 1898 will pay $120 taxes now, provided the property has been kept in perfect repair and is in a good state of preservation.

Another fact I have observed is that a residence pays in taxes, at the present time, what it rented for 25 years ago.

This can be verified repeatedly. I know property that rented for $10 per month 25 years ago, and now the same little cottage pays $120 taxes or more.

At the rate taxes are increasing now, this same cottage will pay from $750 to $1000 taxes 25 years hence! Will the working man be able than to rent more than two or three rooms?

I believe the right time to come to an understanding on the tax question is at election time; the taxpayer should declare himself and say what he will stand for and no more.

One fortunate angle to the situation is that every renter knows he is a taxpayer; he has gotten over the delusion that the other fellow pays the taxes.

I contend that the correct measure for the amount of taxes a community pays, that is, whether its taxes are high or low, is the per capita tax. I contend that if a community of 1,000 people pays $61,190 taxes, and another community of 1000 people pays $37,140, that the first community pays $24,050 more than the second, or that it pays 64.7% more. This is true regardless of any camouflaging about tax rates and assessed valuations. In the first case it takes just $61.19 in taxes for each man, woman and child in the place to run the government, and in the second case the cost is $37.14. This is the per capita tax.

Now for each 1000 people in Madison the taxes paid for 1922 equal $61,190 and in Superior the taxes paid for each 1,000 was $37,140, or the taxes for each person in Madison was $61.19, and in Superior it was $37.14.

The appended table gives tax data for the eight largest cities in Wisconsin, being all cities of 30,000 population or over. The table explains itself and shows that our per capita tax is 7.7% more than in Kenosha, our closest competitor in extravagance, and 64.7% more than in Superior, whose government, as indicated by taxes collected, was most economical. The facts contained in this table convince me that our taxes should be lower. Our last tax rate was 26 mills. I favor electing a council pledged to a rate not in excess of 25 mills. Even at this rate our per capita tax would have been $2.02 more than that of Kenosha. I believe the voters, at this time, should put it up it up to the aldermen-elect. Nothing more than 25 mills! I should like to get the views of other interested parties on this vital question. —Ira L. Cole, 2112 E. Main St.
